Farmers Who Care For Own Animals Not Affected

If Passed, State Bills Could Have Large, Long-Term Effects On Animal Boarders, Farriers

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Two separate bills from Pennsylvania and New Jersey state assemblies, if passed, could have long-term, dramatic effects on the ability to administer health care to animals.

The separate bills, incomplete because they are undergoing legislative review and public commentary, further regulate animal care to such an extent that to do something as simple as administer Vitamin C to a horse, boarders would have to buy the nutritional product from a vet or get a veterinary prescription, according to some.

Right now, even with the bill, people can administer health care to their own animals. But if the legislation is enacted as it is written, those who keep others' 4-H project animals or operate kennels or boarding houses could be limited on what kind of animal care, without a veterinarian's approval, they could give to animals they don't own.

New Jersey Assembly Bill 3344 and Senate Bill 2048, in addition to Pennsylvania Assembly Bill 1418, provide amendments that could restrict the prescription and administration of "any drug, medicine, biologic, apparatus, application, anesthetic, or other therapeutic or diagnostic substance or technique on any animal including, but not limited to, acupuncture and acupressure, dentistry, animal psychology, animal chiropractic, theriogenology, alternative or complementary veterinary medicine or surgery, including cosmetic surgery," according to N.J.A3344. The law could even regulate who could implant, subcutaneously or intramuscularly, an animal transponder.

According to Pa. H.B. 1418, sponsored by Rep. Art Hershey (R-13th) et. al. and referred to the

Dairy Farmers Approve Overhaul Of Milk Pricing

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Editor

WASHINGTON, DC - The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), announced Tuesday that dairy farmers overwhelmingly approved an overhaul of the way milk is priced around the country. In the referendum held Aug. 2-6, eligible dairy farmers voted in favor of consolidating the current 31 federal milk marketing orders into 11. In addition, several other important reforms were supported that included the minimum pricing of Class I (drinking) milk.

An individual referendum was held for each of the consolidated orders. (See chart with this story.) More than the required two-thirds of participating producers approved the reforms. In fact the lowest percentage of approval among voting producers was 90.5 percent in the Northeast, and all other regions were higher.

"The milk marketing order program ensures the fair marketing and pricing of milk. It is not a dairy support program. The current dairy support program expires on December 31, 1999, unless Congress chooses to extend it. Milk marketing orders classify milk by use, set minimum prices that handlers must pay for each class of milk, and provide for paying average prices to all dairy farmers who supply a marketing order. In the 1996

Alfalfa Yield Improvements, Drought Strategies Focus Of Next Foraging Around

The next Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council (PFGC) newsletter, Foraging Around, is scheduled to appear as a special section of Lancaster Farming next Saturday. The issue contains information about alfalfa nitrogen stubble treatment to improve yields and survival strategies used by producers during drought. Also included are special reports from the Council and other useful information to the grazier.

Eastern Frozen Eggs

August 27, 1999

Yolk products were unchanged to higher, and all other products were generally unchanged. The market tone was steady to fully steady on yolks, and mostly steady on the balance. Demand was usually light and trading beyond regular contracts was quiet Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending August 21, 1999 were 4% more than last week, and unchanged compared to the same week last year Shell egg supplies were generally adequate from regular sources

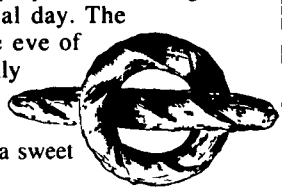
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

SEPTEMBER 6-12, 1999

LABOR DAY, SEPTEMBER 6.

IMPROVEMENT AND FORGIVENESS

Was it really 25 years ago that former President Richard M. Nixon was pardoned? September 8 marks the anniversary of the 1974 event. Later in the week is another time of atonement, Rosh Hashanah (on September 11 this year), one of the High Holy Days that celebrates the Jewish New Year and begins the ten "Days of Awe." Participants engage in serious reflection on self-improvement, prayer, and fasting. Yom Kippur is the tenth and final day. The challah, bread eaten on the eve of Rosh Hashanah, is traditionally round-shaped, symbolizing the full year Dipped in honey, the challah promises a sweet and fruitful new year.



Truth burns up error.

– Sojourner Truth

TIP OF THE WEEK

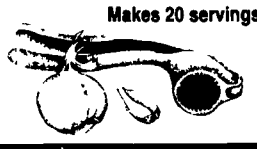
☞ The new Moon is on September 9. When you first glimpse it, jingle the coins in your pocket for good luck.

GOURMET BRUSSELS SPROUTS

3 pounds fresh Brussels sprouts
1/2 cup oil-packed, sun-dried tomatoes
1/2 cup rice-wine vinegar
1/2 cup olive oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 tablespoon sugar
dash of hot-pepper sauce
4 scallions, thinly sliced
1/2 cup chopped parsley

Cook Brussels sprouts in boiling water just until crisp-tender. Drain, then submerge in ice water to cool Drain and transfer to a bowl Cut tomatoes into thin strips and add them to the Brussels sprouts. Toss In a glass cup, whisk together next 5 ingredients Pour this over sprouts and tomatoes, and add scallions and parsley. Stir, cover, and refrigerate.

Makes 20 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If the birds in the autumn grow tame, the winter will be too cold for game.

When a cold spell occurs in September and passes without a frost, a frost will not occur until the same time in October.

As on the 8th, so for the next four weeks.

OPINION

Silo Fire Danger

Dry weather in many parts of Pennsylvania may be causing an increased risk of tower silo fires from a lack of proper forage moisture content and/or from poor fermentation of silage, which in turn could lead to the production of greater amounts of volatile gases that can ignite a silo fire.

Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering and a farm safety expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, explains that the moisture content for forages stored in a silo should be between 45 and 65 percent. If the moisture content falls below the 45 percent level, fire risk increases. He adds that several gases, including hydrogen and methane, are by-products of fermenting silage.

"If excess gases are present, they could burst into flames if exposed to a source of ignition, such as static electricity or sparks created during the loading or blowing of silage," Murphy warns. "Other potential ignition sources are barn lights or other electrical equipment near or at the base of unloading chutes."

Murphy says farmers should take the following precautions to help reduce the risk of silo fires:

—Test the moisture of the forage being ensiled.

—Water down silo unloading chutes.

—Provide plenty of ventilation around the silo, especially at loading areas and up chutes. "Use a barn fan to keep extra oxygen moving up the silo chute," advises Murphy. "This helps prevent the generation of excess silo gases and dilutes the gases present, keeping them from reaching explosive concentrations."

—Clean out chaff and other debris from the silo chute and from around the rungs or frame of chute doors.

Murphy says farmers also must remember that besides the potential fire hazard, silo gases are toxic, especially in the first 48 to 60 hours after filling. "If you must enter the silo within the first 48 to 60 hours, protect yourself by wearing a self-conotained breathing apparatus," he warns. "If you don't have access to one, stay out of the silo.

"Dangerous levels of silo gas may be present for an additional two to three weeks," he adds. "To enter without a self-contained breathing apparatus during this period, ventilate with the silo blower. Open all doors, run the blower fan for 20 minutes and leave it running while you are in the silo. Enter only after you have put on a respirator for toxic dust, and have a second person with you to assist in an emergency."

Please be careful.

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Plant Cover Crops

Cover crops act as a nutrient bank, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent. Cover crops are capable of using the leftover nitrogen from the previous crop season before it leaches into the ground water.

If the corn silage crop did not use all the nitrogen applied, it leaves some unused nitrate nitrogen in the soil profile. A cover crop will capture that nitrogen and use it for crop growth.

In the spring when the cover crop is killed with a herbicide or plowed down, the nitrogen is released back into the soil during the growing season for the next crop.

In addition, cover crops add organic matter to the soil. Whether the entire plant is left in the field or just the roots, this plant material adds organic matter to them soil. Organic matter adds water holding capacity to the soil. Provides food for soil microbes, improves soil structure and adds to the soil ability to hold nutrients. A little money for seed and a little time to plant are small costs to pay for the many returns that cover crops provide.

To Plant Cover Crops for Feed

Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, reminds us cover crops may also provide additional forage for livestock feed. If the cover crop is harvested as a silage crop, the nitrogen it captures from the soil becomes a source of protein when fed to ruminant livestock.

When the cover crop is used to produce silage, not only is the nitrogen kept from leeching into the environment, the silage grown will replace purchased feeds at a very small cost to the producer.

Cover crops offer the most advantage when planted imediately after removing corn silage or tobacco.

To Invest in Assets

In a recent book review of the book Rich Dad, Poor Dad by Robert Kiyosaki, several observations were made on the differences on how middle class people and rich people view earning money.

The thesis of the book is middle class people work for money and rich people have money work for them. Most people live their lives chasing paychecks, pay raises and job security. Kiyosaki says there are no get rich quick schemes, but learning the difference between assets and liabilities is very important.

Rich people acquire assets. Middle class people acquire liabilities, but they think they are assets. An asset puts money into your pocket. A liability takes money out of your pocket. Financial aptitude is what you do with your money once you make it, how you keep people from taking it from you, how long you keep it and how hard that money works for you.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "If you are not riding the wave of change, you will find yourself beneath it."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHERE'S YOUR HOLY GROUND?
September 5, 1999

Background Scripture:
Exodus 3
Devotional Reading:
Exodus 6:2-8

As I have said previously, sometimes we do not encounter God until we are down and out and have nowhere else to turn like Jacob, for instance, when he was fleeing from the wrath of his brother Esau. Joseph encountered God — although not for the first time, if we count his youthful prophetic dreams — when he was languishing in Egyptian captivity.

Moses, however, encountered God while he was uneventfully "keeping the flock of his father-in-law, Jethro, the priest of Midian . . ." (3:1). It was probably the most tranquil period in Moses' life. No more of the intrigues of the Pharoah's court. No more running to escape justice for killing the Egyptian who persecuted his fellow Hebrews. Life with Ziporrah and Jethro out in the wilderness was so uncomplicated in comparison with the life he had previously lived.

I have encountered God in both places: at the bottom of the pile and in the quietness of the wilderness. That doesn't mean that God had not tried to speak with me elsewhere and previously, but only that I had not heard or acknowledged him. In both anguish and silence I have encountered the God who at last was able to get my attention.

ATTENTION! ATTENTION!

The solitude of the wilderness can play tricks on us. We may see, hear and think things that would not occur to us anywhere else. This gives God a chance to get our attention. In the case of Moses, it was a desert bush that burned but was not consumed. When we visited St. Catherine's monastery in the Sinai desert a few years ago, the monks showed us a desert bush that burns without being consumed. It doesn't matter to me, however, if this was simply a little-known natural phenomenon, a hallucination or a supernatural experience. God was finally able to get Moses' attention.

Of course there was more to it than that. There was also Moses' willingness to "turn aside and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt" (3:3). Moses could have reacted differently. He might have persuaded himself that the bush only appeared to be burning and persuaded himself that what he saw was not really happening.

Moses, however, did turn aside to observe what was happening and, when God called to him, he replied "Here am I." It is difficult for us to encounter God unless we are willing to turn aside to see what God may be doing in our midst, unless we are ready to answer, "Here I am."

ON HOLY GROUND

Moses' encounter with God may have begun with no higher motivation than curiosity, but it soon became a sense of awe and wonder. "Put off your shoes from your feet, for the place on which you are standing is holy ground." This nondescript spot of wilderness was a place where Moses would encounter the Lord and he needed to respond with reverence. In ancient times fire was a phenomenon through which God sometimes revealed himself and taking off one's shoes was a sign of reverence.

The message of that divine-human encounter was both good news and bad news. First, the good news: God had heard the prayers of his afflicted people and he will redeem them from their Egyptian captivity. And, second, the bad news (at least for Moses): he had chosen Moses as the instrument of that redemption. Moses' overwhelming reaction to this bit of news is that he is unworthy and incapable of doing this job. He is right, of course, he is NOT worthy or up to this task. He doesn't have to be, for God promises: "But I will be with you" (3:12).

The key here is not Moses' self-sufficiency, but that of God. Whatever Moses needs to be for this task, God will provide (just as in the story of Abraham and Isaac God provided what was needed on the mountaintop). God makes that very same promise to us when he calls us — but first we must find the place in our lives that is holy ground.

In the dairy business, income over feed cost is the name of the game. Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements offer dairymen the means to maximize this value while getting the most from their cow's natural abilities.

Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements are concentrated sources of just what ordinary feeds lack: protein, energy, vitamins, minerals -- everything animals need for economical milk production and growth.

For replacement heifers, Pro-Lix means faster maturity and assurance that they'll get to the milking herd on time. If you trust your heifers to forage alone, they might not make it. (Bouvatec Is Available)

For lactating cows, the nitrogen content of Pro-Lix means plenty of protein available for milk production and growth.

Finally, for dry cows, Pro-Lix not only helps maintain their health during the dry period it prepares them for the next lactation. The Ca:P ratio in Pro-Lix helps control milk fever, while the Vitamin E and selenium aids in clean-up after the birth of a calf.

Best of all, Pro-Lix works with all types of pasture grass or forage, as a free-choice supplement, a top-dressing, or a ration mix

Dairy Farmers

Farm Bill, Congress mandated that USDA reform the program by Oct. 1, 1999.

Chris Galen, a spokesman for the National Milk Producers Federation has been quoted, as saying, dairy farmers will lose $200 million a year compared to the current system while consumers will see little impact. greater dilemma.

In a letter to USDA, Dairy Farmers of America said its members were approving the pricing plan reluctantly. "Our 'yes' This is because all other dairy farmers except those in the upper-Midwest will see a decline in their milk prices. But they voted for the change because to have no federal order program would cause a vote does not mean that dairy farmers can live with the final rule. They Cannot. Economically, the income and livelihood of many dairy farm families will suffer significantly under your proposal," the group said.

The Federal Milk Marketing Order reform process lasted more than three years and involved the dairy industry, the general public, and academia. The process included detailed regulatory impact, small business, and civil rights analyses and extensive efforts to collect public views that resulted in more than 8,000 comments being received.

Local Tobacco Growers May Get $2,000 Checks

Lancaster County tobacco farmers may get $2,000 per grower per year for several years because of a settlement reached with the cigarette industry.

It appears farmers are in line for a windfall as a result of settlement reached this month between the cigarette industry and 14 tobacco-producing states, including Pennsylvania.

The settlement, approved by a North Carolina court, calls for tobacco companies to pay $380 million this year to the 14 states, according to Joel Ressler, senior deputy at the Pennsylvania Attorney General's office.

The payments will continue for 12 years, but the amounts will be determined annually. Ressler said the goal is to help farmers find new ways to generate a living.

"The thinking is that by then, farmers should have adjusted and moved on to other products," Ressler said. "We want to encourage them to make the transition, but the amount any grower will get is not enough to get them to stop growing totally."

North Carolina will get about a third of the $380 million settlement. Pennsylvania, which represents less than 1 percent of the industry, will get $2 million, with 90 percent of that destined for Lancaster County.

Ressler said he believes there are about 1,000 tobacco growers in Pennsylvania with 900 of them in Lancaster County. Based on those numbers, the settlement works out to about $2,000 per grower.

Ressler said his agency will be working with the state Department of Agriculture to put together a list of Pennsylvania's growers. The $2 million will not be disbursed, however, until an appeal over Pennsylvania's portion of the settlement is resolved.

"Each state brought its own lawsuit, and some of them are still pending because there are similar appeals out there," he said.

Dr. Robert Sklaroff, a Montgomery County cancer specialist, is behind the appeal, which recently was rejected by a Commonwealth Court. Sklaroff is asking that court for a reconsideration and has said he will take the case to the state Supreme Court, according to Ressler. He called Sklaroff an "anti-smoking activist" who "doesn't like the deal."

Details on exactly how the payments will provide incentives to begin growing other crops are still being worked out, Ressler said, but he added that farmers are not being given an ultimatum to stop growing tobacco.

If Passed, State Bills Could Have Large, Long-Term Effects On Animal Boarders, Farriers

Committee on Professional Licensure May 4, if the bill would be enacted into law, in its current version, those even applying " . . . therapeutic or diagnostic technique or nutritional substance or technique on, for, or to any animal . . ." without being a licensed veterinarian could face legal prosecution.

Hershey is concerned about the "finite" language of the bill. He noted that farriers should be allowed to continue what they should be doing by their profession. But the bill itself "is not near ready to go to the floor," he told Lancaster Farming. Revisions to the bill are necessary before it reaches its final form.

Hershey noted he has received letters from nurse technicians concerned that, in the current wording of the bill, their own livelihood could be threatened. The technicians were concerned about being replaced by cheaper labor in the field, Hershey indicated.

But farriers should be able to continue what they are trained to do and have been allowed to do, Hershey noted.

The consequences of having to be a licensed veterinarian in the Veterinary Practice Reform Act, to be able to do even what is considered "normal animal husbandry," noted a human chiropractor who owns horses, "effects a lot of people," said Peggy Dillon. "That's disturbing to me."

Not just those who board horses, but 4-H project boarders, kennels, "anybody who takes care of any animals," said Dillon, would be affected.

Some have indicated that people who board horses or other animals, including 4-H projects, would be restricted from attempting any type of therapies, including administrating liniment or even giving animals nutritional supplements, to animals they don't own.

This could have a drastic effect on feed suppliers, nutritionists, feed mixing companies — all those who don't use a veterinarian in the process of providing nutritive products to animals that are boarded.

If passed, the bills may be similar to a state law in Texas that requires everybody "to get a prescription from the vet to buy Vitamin C for a horse, " said Dillon, New Egypt, N.J.

The Pennsylvania Veterinary Medical Association (PVMA) and American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) are both pushing for the adoption of the bill, working with state lobbyists.

According to Dr. Clifford Cummings, DVM with Northside Animal Hospital, Bethlehem, a lot of states are revising their veterinary practice acts to incorporate much-needed changes. These changes take into account the new "modalities" being practiced, including animal chiropractic, massage therapy, and holistic therapies, to name a few. To protect consumers, if animals are being treated with the new modalities, proper training and certification may be required.

The PVMA and AVMA needed to make these modifications in light of recent developments in treating animals.

For farriers, they have always been and will be continue to be exempted, even if changes are adopted to the veterinary practice act, Cummings indicated. The Pennsylvania Professional Farriers Association (PPFA) gave the proposed changes their "blessing," he said.

Mirroring a similar Maryland bill enacted in the law, the changes were put in at the request of the PPFA, according to Cummings.

For other changes, the concern is relevant, according to several involved in using the new modalities. For one thing, antibiotics in feeds are suspected of being a threat, in some cases, to human health. How those feed antibiotics are to be regulated requires changes in the veterinary practice act, according to some practicing veterinarians. Nutritive substances include antibiotic and other additives to improve animal health.

The proposed changes could dramatically effect those not properly trained in animal health care.

"When certain people start to extricate teeth or give drip lines, the people are overstepping their boundary" if they're not trained, Cummings noted. This bill takes into account referrals — right now veterinarians can't refer "anything to a human chiropractor," he said. Some of those chiropractors are treating animals at the farm.

According to Dave Duckett, Ambler, a long-time practicing farrier, a hearing originally scheduled for Sept. 21-22 in Seven Springs, Somerset County, was rescheduled in Room 461 of the Capitol Building in Harrisburg Sept. 14-15.

If passed in its current form, the bill could literally "intrude upon a person's freedom and right to choose" animal care, said Duckett. A portion of the bill exempts farriers, but limits their art to horseshoeing only, according to the proposed changes. But the work of a farrier is more complex than merely applying a shoe to a horse.

Dave Duckett, FWCF, is a long-time farrier. Duckett's title, FWCF, means Fellow of Worshipfull Company of Farriers, London, King's Charter. He began his farrier indenture in 1960. In England, farriers must undergo a four-year study followed by two years of service as a journeyman. In his 40-year career, Duckett has been honored as British, international, and world horseshoeing champion.

Duckett indicated that farriery is the "mother" to the profession of veterinary science. "It goes back a lot further that veterinary medicine," he noted, and is the basis of the veterinary practice. King Charles I in 1770 chartered the practice.

In the bill itself, farriers are already exempt — but, to the baffllement of the farriers, with limits on top of the exemption.

"Why would they place limits on something already exempt for more than 100 years?" said Duckett.

And with the new modalties, Duckett said none of them are taught in vet schools in America.

Those questions would have to be worked out.

According to several legislators, the bill's intent was to more clearly define the role of veterinarian. The bill amends the existing act of Dec. 27, 1974 (P.L. 995, No. 326), to further define the rights, privileges, and powers for the treatment of animals.

Some legislators believe the existence of the bill, according to Rep. Sheila Miller (R-129th), a cosponsor, is to ward off those who

Desirae Hillegass Shows Supreme At Somerset

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — "She's a good cow," said Desirae Hillegass after "Locker-Lane Emory Babe," a senior 3-year-old was named Supreme at the Somerset County Fair's Dairy Show. Babe was the Holstein breed grand champion.

"She's come a long way," added Hillegass, 20, from Mountain View Farm, Berlin. "This is her fifth show this year and she was grand champion at three."

Out of MJR Blackstar Emory, Babe's birth date was December 14, 1995. Wayne E. Schrock, Grantsville, Md. was the breeder.

The Pennsylvania State University junior is majoring in dairy animal science and ag-education, but concentrates on the large dairy operation, specifically calves, when classes aren't in session.

Her parents are Doug and Debra Hillegass and brothers are Justin and Jared.

Hillegass encourages juniors when they first begin to show animals not to give up. Hers was a long journey to the top, but she gained experience until showing her first grand champion at age 17.

"Pay attention to the registered cows in the herd," she advises. "Try to develop good cows. It takes a lot of time and special treatment."

A senior 3-year-old, owned and bred by Philip Petenbrink Garrett, was named Holstein reserve grand champion. Destiny Charles Julie out of Boulet Charles was born October 28, 1995.

Kristi Ann Michael, Meyersdale, had the Jersey breed grand champion in Italia Farms Fright, Nov. 6, 1996 out of Comfort Royal Alf. She was shown in the Senior 2-year-old class. Angela Poligardo, Meyersdale, was the breeder.

The Jersey reserve grand champion was Char-dale Teejay Paula, out of HL Duncan Hill, March 11, 1993. Owner Lance Bittner of Berlin showed her in the six years and older class. Charles D. Johnson, Somerset was the breeder.

Meredith Murray's spring calves, out of Kuszmar Alfairs Othello, were grand and reserve champions in the Milking Shorthorn breed.

Cranapple's Cherry-Twin was grand, and Cranapple's Chocolate-Twin was reserve. Meredith Murray was the breeder.

A summer yearling was the Ayrshire grand champion in Vinemont Evremonde Emma owned by Eric Murray, Salisbury.

Out of Melody-Lane Evremonde, the breeder was Tabb, Lyle and Sons, Inc., Kearneysville, W. Va.

Adam Coleman's Fall Calf, Colecream Sensation Bea, out of VB Spices Sensation was the Brown Swiss grand champion.

Coleman, from Berlin, had the Brown Swiss reserve champion with Four D Trishs Sandy, a 5-year-old out of Top Acres Combo Preston. Robert D. Door, Berlin, was the breeder.

In the Guernsey breed, Justin Kaufman's Winter Yearling Just In Henry Elma, out of Solum Grand Henry, was named the grand champion. The breeeder was Elmer M. Yoder, Meyersdale.

Kaufman, from Friedens, also had the Guernsey reserve champion showed in the Winter Calf Class — Just In Loral Lacey - out of Trotacre Mercury Loral. Kaufman was also the breeder.

Montgomery County 4-H Dairy Show Held

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Fourteen dairy cows with six dairy breeds represented were exhibited at the Montgomery County 4-H Fair in Creamery. Karen Vail of Myerstown judged the cattle for type (body structure) and fitting (how well the animal is groomed). In addition, each 4-H'er was judged on their ability to show their bovine during the contest.

This year's supreme champion of the show was a 3-year-old Holstein, Hallowell's Jurist Jody, exhibited by Sean Hallowell of Bechtelsville. An antique gallon milk container representing milk from the supreme champion's milk was later auctioned off to the top bidder, Freddy Hill Farms of Lansdale for $495 as part of Montgomery County's market animal sale. Proceeds from the milk container are split between Sean and the Montgomery County 4-H Dairy Club. The junior supreme champion was a spring calf, Hallowell's Patron Blue, exhibited by Amber Hallowell of Bechtelsville.

Holsteins exhibited by Sean Hallowell and Amber Hallowell both of Bechtelsville were the Holstein grand champion and reserve grand champion, respectively. Grand champion for the five colored breeds are as follows: Ayrshire, Kathrine Dunning of Schwenksville; Brown Swiss, Chris McGinnis of Souderton; Guernsey, Amber Hallowell; Jersey, Chris McGinnis; Milking Shorthorn, Kevin McGinnis.

The fitting and showing portion of the dairy show was divided into three classes. Juniors (Jr.), ages of 8 to 10, Intermediates (Int.) ages 11 to 14, and Seniors (Sr.) ages 15 to 18. In the Jr. Fitting, Kathrine Dunning received Jr. Fitting honors. For the Int. 4-H'ers Amber Hallowell of Bechtelsville and Kevin McGinnis of Souderton received fitting and reserve fitting awards. Showmanship champion and res. champions went to Amber Hallowell and Kevin McGinnis. In the Sr. 4-H class, Chris McGinnis and Sean Hallowell were 1st and 2nd place in the fitting and showmanship contest, respectively.

All participants of the 4-H dairy show were required to complete a project book for each animal. The 4-H dairy experience helps teach the basics in how to care for animals and the economics involved with raising dairy animals. If Passed, State Bills Could Have Long-Term Effects are practicing veterinary medicine who are simply not trained to do so. Others, such as Cummings, a practicing veterinarian, and Rep. Art Hershey, also note the bill makes up for lost time — the new modalities demand the existence of changes to the veterinary practice act.

As of presstime, few veterinarians were familiar with the details of Pennsylvania's bill. Larry Hutchinson, Penn State extension veterinarian, said the whole purpose of the bill was to protect the public from those attempting to practice veterinarian health without a license. Though it is OK for boarders to feed a mineral such as selenium as part of basic foodstuff, injecting that selenium belongs in hands of licensed veterinarians.

Hutchinson noted PVMA's interpretation of the bill. According to a May 24 letter to all Pennsylvania veterinarians, Amy Hilton, DVM and PVMA president, provided a 12-point outline of the bill's specifics. She noted that the "existing definition of the practice of veterinary medicine is seriously outdated and, thus, is one of the most important changes," in the letter. "The new language includes numerous activities such as dentistry, chiropractic, acupuncture, holistic medicine, and others that were not included within the 'practice of veterinary medicine' under the old act."

For farriers, under note 3, the proposed changes "have not altered the normal animal husbandry exemptions that are present in the existing act, relating to normal agriculture practices. Thus, as the farriers of Pennsylvania have requested, the shoeing of horses always has been and still is exempt under this section."

According to Jay Flynn, former president of the Pennsylvania Professional Farriers Association (PPFA) who serves as treasurer of PPFA, the "art of horseshoeing," as indicated by the proposed changes to H.B. 1418, is "purposefully undefined." The horseshoeing "art form" is what is key to the proposed legislation — based upon a 500-page trade text, "Principles of Horseshoeing" by Dr. Doug Butler.

Standard farrier industry practices will continue to be upheld in a court of law, Flynn said. "We are not trying to land on farriers by any stretch of the imagination," Flynn told Lancaster Farming. Instead, the changes to the bill provide an identical exception to Maryland's enacted changes to their own veterinary practices act.

"Every state is redoing its veterinary practice act," Flynn said. The state professional licensure committees are trying to qualify, through changes to the bill, who can practice what and what steps must be taken to ensure the proper training for the proper work is provided.

Flynn said that there is "no movement by any veterinary association to restrict the practice of farriers," he said. As a practicing farrier, "I want less limits, believe me."

What is unclear is exactly how much room the bill allows for "veterinary supervision" of certain practices. According to the PVMA's interpretation of the proposed practice act modifications, "Alternative fields of medicine are becoming very attractive to consumers. The new language allows other health care professionals to practice under the supervision of licensed veterinarians, expanding such serves to the public but only with appropriate veterinary oversight."

Hutchinson of Penn State noted that the bill would help to stem attempts by individuals to sell products and make claims that simply aren't true. There have been complaints from people who have tried animal care products that didn't hold up to their claims.

Right now, even with the bill, people can do what they want with their own animals. But those taking care of other animals would have to be on the alert. The state is merely seeking to protect the public's interest.

The bill seeks to provide a "balancing act between what the public needs and deserves," Hutchinson said. "It protects the public from being preyed upon."

As currently worded, the bills would affect the prevention of deformities, also, which could affect saddle fitters and dog trainers. Those administrating any kind of homeopathic and natural therapies, including acupuncture and massage therapy and other alternative medicine, could be dramatically affected by the passage of such a bill.

The bill remains purposely vague, according to an anonymous source. It doesn't define, exactly, what a "nutritional substance" is. The vagueness is disturbing because it leaves the bills' proposals wide open for interpretation.

"A lot of vets do not like the bills," according to one expert. The PVMA numbers only about 1,500 members, according to Buz Thomas, PVMA executive director. There are about 3,200 practicing, licensed veterinarians in the state.

According to one practicing animal chiropractor who wished to remain anonymous, "If they would have polled all the vets, perhaps they would have come up with a different perspective on the proposed changes to the bill."

According to Peggy Dillon, the AVMA may be trying to control exactly how nutritional and therapeutic products get dispensed. If people can't take care of the animals unless they're vets, she said, "people who are trained won't be able to practice chiropractic; and those not trained will be licensed," she said.

"This can effect a lot of people in a lot of ways," Dillon said.

However, AVMA was quick to point out, according to an AVMA Network bulletin, that the mission statement on the guidelines recently posted on alternative and complementary medicine, adopted by the committee, ensure that deliberations and discussions were targeted at "contributing to the welfare of the animal patients we serve, rather than at protecting any economic advantages for the veterinary profession or for nonveteriarians who perform the modalities."

Yet in the wordings of the bills, the limits are unclear: Could you apply gauze to an injury if the animal isn't yours? Could you surgically remove a mole or canker?

Dillon urges those who care for or board animals in New Jersey or Pennsylvania to get in touch with their state congressperson and urge them to allow more public discussion of the bill.

According to the July 1999 Horse News, "non-veterinarians fear the bill would effectively put equine dentists and animal physical therapists out of business by expanding activities included within the 'practice of veterinary medicine.'"

The newsletter noted that among those mobilizing opposition to H.B. 1418 is Craig Denega, Bensalem, a human massage therapist for 30 years who has added equine clients in the last 10-12 years, including horses. He also teaches massage and alternative therapy for horses as an adjunct faculty member at Delaware Valley College, according to Horse News.

For more information about the bill, contact Cliff Cummings, (610) 759-5922. For more information about how the bill could effect farriers, contact Dave Duckett, (215) 646-8502. Rep. Hershey, who helped sponsor the bill, can be reached at (717) 783-6435 or at his district office, (610) 593-6565. Or you can contact your local state representative.

Do You Need Emergency Feed?

As a Cover crop, Green Spirit Italian Ryegrass blend from Barenbrug has yielded more and higher quality forage than Rye and Triticale, in trials in PA and MD

Tired of the way rye heads out and loses its quality so fast in spring? Would you like to have a rye that becomes denser and leafier after cutting/grazing instead of becoming stemmy? Would you like to have a ryelage that tests 26% protein with RFV of 175? (200 RFV at grazing height.) Try Barenbrug Green Spirit Italian Ryegrass blend!

Also works great no tilled into Alfalfa fields in fall for very high quality balage or hay next spring. Does not head out till approx. two weeks later than orchardgrass with much higher quality.

Can also be mixed with oats, rye or Triticale etc. 1 BU to 25 lbs. Green Spirit. Under ideal conditions Ryegrass can be grazed in 6 or 8 weeks.

Seed ryegrass at 35-45 lbs. an acre, from Aug. until mid-Oct. in Lancaster Co. PA.

In Addition: Consider Baralfa 54 From Barenbrug. In Penn State's trials in Landisville, PA Baralfa 54 had the #1 average.

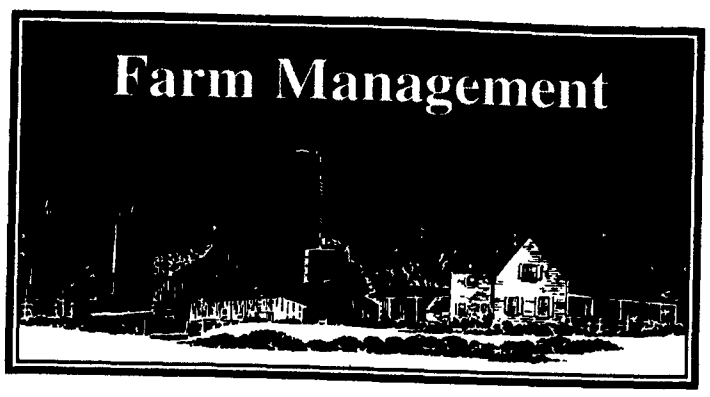
Designers of Quality Systems for Poultry and Grain Handling



Questions you must answer before creating your marketing materials.

It's counterproductive (and costly) to begin writing your ads, flyers, sales letters, brochures, catalogs, etc., until you know your exact target audience and the precise advantages your product can offer them. What's more, if you're ever on a tight deadline, this Q & A process can prevent anxiety and help you work smarter and faster under tight deadlines. Therefore, it's crucial that you answer these questions - in writing - before you begin.

* Whom are you trying to reach?

* What is the competitive situation?

* What do you want your marketing to do? ( ) to generate inquiries ( ) to answer inquiries ( ) to generate sales ( ) to build awareness ( ) to provide information ( ) to build company image ( ) to announce new products ( ) other:_____

* What specific benefits are you offering them? How will it make or save them money? Save them time or work? Make their life easier, better?

* What proof do you have to substantiate your benefits?

* What will it do for them?

* What specific problem (s) does it solve? What opportunities does it create?

* Is your product unique or exclusive? What makes people furious or frustrated about the competition's products?

* Why should your prospects buy now?

* What will happen if they don't?

* What obstacles are preventing them from buying?

* What do you want the prospect to do?

* How do you want them to do it?

* What media are involved?

* What is your budget?

* What is the OFFER? (Is there a special introductory savings? Premium? Limited-time offer? 2 for 1 sale? Free information? Or, what will they lose if they don't act now?)

* Are testimonials or success stories available?

* Do you have a GUARANTEE? (100% money-back anytime)

* How will you measure success of your marketing program?

When creating marketing documents - ads, sales letters, self- mailing brochures, catalogues and the like, use this time-proven formula to generate results. It's called AIDA (pronounced A-Da), an acronym for Attention, Interest, Desire and Action. Get the readers attention. Appeal to the readers interest. Stimulate the readers desire. Tell the reader the action to be taken.

Livestock Auction Sets Bid Records

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — "This is the best sale in Pennsylvania," said Clayton Winebark of Indiana, auctioneer for the annual junior livestock auction at the Bedford County Fair.

Setting a precedent established in the past several years, Bill Campbell, owner of Bedford Chrysler, Bedford Ford, and Hoss's Steak and Seafood, was back for record purchases.

And likewise, the Turkovich family, owners of American Outfitters, contributed heavily to the success of the sale.

The 114-pound, grand champion lamb shown by Eli Blackburn of Bedford, went for $36 per pound. Purchased by Bob Dibert of Bedford Chrysler, the animal was donated back and resold for $2.50 with the proceeds going to the scholarship fund.

Erik Turkovich paid $21 per pound for the 125-pound reserve grand champion sheep owned by Ben Sollenberger of New Enterprise. It was likewise resold for the scholarship project and S&L Shaw Lamb and Goats of Broadway, Va. purchasing it for $5.50.

The young showman, Sollenberger, contributed five percent of the first sale to the scholarship fund, a goat barn building, and a livestock sale.

Josh Corle, Osterburg, saw his champion carcass sold for $6 to Johnston Realty and donated back to the Bedford Fire Department.

Stephen Sweet sold his reserve champion carcass to Fib-Chem for $10.25. Sweet donated five percent to the scholarship fund.

Jessica Hall sold her lightweight champion for $3.25 to the Veterinary Medical Center. The lightweight reserve champion, owned by Mike Miller, was purchased by Mark A. Kane Inc. of Huntingdon for $3.25.

Shaun Styer's middleweight reserve champion was purchased by Myers Ewe Farm for $3.50. The heavyweight reserve champion, owned by Krista Myers, was purchased by Roy Kegg for $3.25.

Bidding on sheep broke all previous records. Joe Speicher of Straightway Decks lifted the spirits of those who got lower bids by bringing all the sheep sales to $2 per pound. Morrison's Cove Livestock had guaranteed floor prices, but all were exceeded in the bidding.

Swine

Breaking all previous records, the 251-pound hog owned by Eric Imler of New Enterprise went for $16.50 per pound to American Outfitters.

Bedford Ford purchased the 239-pound reserve grand champion owned by Kelly Waugerman of Schellsburg for $7.

The champion 167-pound carcass owned by Nicki Smith of New Enterprise went for $4.50. Purchased by Brian Barkley, it was donated to the Shawnee Valley Fire Company.

Kendall, Prevola & Jones, accountants, purchased the 163-pound reserve champion carcass from Billy Kendall of Bedford for $9.

Beef

While beef purchased did not set records, prices were good as the 1,303-pound angus grand champion, owned by Bradley Conrad of Artemas, brought

1999 DISTRICT MEETING DATES

The Board and Staff of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. invites all dairy farmers to attend this year's District Annual Meetings. The grassroots efforts of ADADC depend on involvement and input by our dairy farmer members. The purpose of our meetings is to present updates on budgets and programs that are used to sell milk to consumers in New York, northern New Jersey and northeastern Pennsylvania. The district meetings are also your chance to select the farmer leaders of the organization.

As part of their membership in ADADC, each farm will receive two free meals and will be credited with $2 off any additional meals at the district meetings. Please attend and take advantage of this opportunity to have your questions answered, and take pride in your award winning programs.

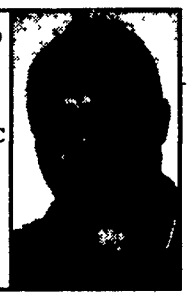
Dairyman To Dairyman



GEORGE CUDOC
PA DHIA
Consulting
Dairyman

QUESTION: We have recently moved into a parlor with electronic equipment and we were told that component tests were unnecessary. Is there a way to use component tests to help manage our herd.?

ANSWER: The best way I know to answer is to refer to piece that was written a year ago.

Component testing today can be used in ways that are much more significant now than years past when butterfat and protein were used mostly to identify superior cows in genetic evaluation. Milk payment basis also relies heavily on these two tests, but in the past, the way to increase pay was to breed your cows to have higher tests. Little was done to sharpen management skills because of component testing.

Today's modern dairyman works with on-farm professionals who look at component testing in a much broader scope.

DHIA fat and protein information can tell us a lot about the nutritional well-being of our dairy cows. Providing individual data that can be sorted into groups can help pinpoint specific places to start our quest to improve our nutritional management. This is much more useful than bulk tank information which gives us ideas that problems exist, but no information as to where we should begin to solve these problems.

Milk fat test is not only the oldest of the component tests, but still the most important because it reflected of rumen health of the dairy cow. We know that cows typically produce milk in the early weeks of lactation and should have a butterfat test above the norm.

As lactation proceeds, fat tests will go down as milk peaks and is then followed by a gradual increase in fat test.

Looking at butterfat tests for cows in early lactation which are below normal (3.8 percent in Holsteins) may not seem significant now, but will rumen acidosis occur causing laminitis later in the lactation?

What about high fat tests? Can we learn from this or does it just indicate higher prices for our milk?

Very high tests in early lactation might mean our cows are burning fat reserves at a very rapid rate and we may need to contact our vet about cows with ketosis.

The key in using milk faqt as a measure of rumen health is to try and ward off problems that may rob us of profits later. Poor performance and having to treat sick cows are huge profit robbers.

Milk protein has overtaken butterfat as the largest basis of payment to farms, except for a rare situation. This is reason enough to learn to use the component test to help manage our nutrition program.

Low protein tests tell us more than the fat that we will receive less money for our milk.

Low protein tests along with high butterfat usually indicates low dry matter intake, which is often associated with metabolic disorders such as ketosis.

Drops in protein test alone indicate a shortfall in energy consumed by our cows. This may be due to reduced dry matter intake or a lack of fermentable carbohydrates in the diet.

Try to evaluate the cause of the low protein test and you will be on track to solve the problem.

Factors that relate to cow comfort are targets when dry matter intake is the problem.

Poor ration formulation or delivery can be causing low protein tests even when the cows' environment is at an optimum.

MUN testing is the newest component test available in PA DHIA and can have significant impact on the bottom line performance in our herds.

Individual cow testing for MUN, like butterfat and protein, can help us to evaluate nutritional performance and gives insight to pinpointing problems associated with the nutritional needs of our cows. In general, high MUN values tell us that protein utilization is not what it should be.

Overfeeding protein, of course, may be the problem but more often than not the problem is a combination of less-than-desirable carbohydrate levels and too much or the wrong kind of protein.

The use of MUN, along with protein tests, can lead the way to successfully feeding our cows.

Texas A&M Scientists Clone First-Ever Bull

COLLEGE STATION, Texas — Scientists at Texas A&M University have successfully cloned what is believed to be the first calf cloned from an adult bull, which is also the oldest animal ever cloned — a 21-year-old Brahman. Their research could have enormous implications in the beef cattle industry and in the future applications of cloning technology.

Researchers Jonathan Hill and Mark Westhusin accomplished the cloning of the bull, fittingly named "Chance," in a year-long project. Chance's offspring, "Second Chance," was born three weeks ago and displays identical markings as his father and has identical DNA, the researchers say.

"The owners of Chance, who are from LaGrange, Texas, wanted to have their prized bull cloned because of his unusually gentle nature, and they considered the cloning effort a good opportunity to see if an identical copy of Chance might also have such an easy going disposition," Hill said. "Chance was great around people, and he was in several TV commercials, performed in the Houston Rodeo and was even on The Late Show with David Letterman," Hill added. "They want to see if Second Chance lives up to his heritage."

Hill said the bull was unable to reproduce naturally because of the removal of both diseased testicles two years ago. Therefore, he said, cloning Chance was the only option for preserving his genetics.

"Second Chance is obviously an intact male and should be able to sire offspring when he reaches puberty," Hill confirmed. Chance died a few months ago at age 21, shortly before his DNA was used to produce Second Chance. Hill said there is considerable interest in keeping track of Second Chance throughout his lifetime because of the age of the cells used to clone him.

Last spring, scientists revealed that the DNA of Dolly, the first cloned sheep, had some characteristics of the older cells that were used to generate her.

"The chromosomes, which package the animal's DNA, have some special DNA at their tips called telomeres," Hill explained.

"These small pieces of DNA help to protect chromosomes from damage. Very young animals have long telomeres, but as the animal ages, the telomeres are worn away. We should know in a month or so if the telomeres of Second Chance are like those of the 21-year-old bull used as the source of the cells for the cloning process, or if they are more like those of a normal newborn calf."

Hill said it took 189 attempts — that is, transferring 189 cells into 189 different eggs — before a pregnancy ended in the delivery of Second Chance.

Because Second Chance came from the oldest animal cloned to date, he has received intensive monitoring and treatment since birth by a team of veterinarians and intensive care technicians at the Texas A&M Large Animal Hospital. Like many previously cloned calves, at birth he displayed some symptoms that resembled those seen in premature human babies. However, Second Chance is now in good health, Hill said.

The successful cloning effort could dramatically impact the multi-billion dollar beef cattle industry in Texas and throughout the world.

"This could lead to new opportunities in cattle breeding, and for that matter, other animals," Hill believes.

Hill is a veterinarian trained in Australia and at Texas A&M who used the cloning work as part of his doctor of philosophy studies in physiology with Westhusin. He is also a member of another research team led by Westhusin that is involved in the Missyplicity Project, the first-ever attempt to clone a dog.

The Missyplicity Project is a 2-year effort to produce the first cloned dog. The anonymous sponsor of the project have invested $2.3 million to produce a clone of their pet dog, Missy, a mixed breed border collie. A team of about 20 researchers is working on the Missyplicity Project, and some of the knowledge gained by Second Chance is helping to advance that research.

Maryland and Virginia Returns Patronage

RESTON, Va. — Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc. distributed $6.5 million today in patronage dividends to its members shipping milk in 1998. The distribution includes 70 percent in cash—or 21 cents per hundredweight—and 30 percent—or 9 cents—issued in eight-year revolving fund certificates. The profits were generated prior to Maryland and Virginia's consolidation with Carolina Virginia and were distributed to 1,150 members in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Delaware.

By law, cooperatives are required to return only 20 percent in cash to its members, making Maryland and Virginia's 70 percent distribution 3½ times higher than required. The cooperative distributed 80 percent last year and averaged 57 percent over the last ten years.

1998 EARNINGS TOTAL 75 CENTS/CWT

This brings the 1998 cooperative earnings to 75 cents per hundredweight in cash above Federal Order market prices. In addition to patronage dividends, this total includes over-order premiums, quality premiums and profits of raw milk sales.

"With drought conditions and volatile milk prices, we hope this cash distribution will help ease the financial challenges dairy farmers are facing," said President Jack Hardesty, a dairy farmer from Berryville, Va.

General Manager Robert Shore added, "The cooperative's excellent financial condition coupled with a good year for divisional operations contributed to another good year of patronage dividends. Maryland and Virginia has been fortunate to continue its long-standing record of financial success."

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers, headquartered in Reston, Va., is a milk marketing and processing cooperative which markets milk for over 1,560 dairy farmers in ten states from Pennsylvania to Alabama. The cooperative includes Marva Maid, a milk processing division in Newport News, Va.; a manufacturing division in Laurel, Md.; an equipment division in Frederick, Md.; and a regional office in Charlotte, N.C.

Youth Qualify At Southcentral District Dairy Show

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — A number of youth who exhibited dairy cattle recently at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds at the Southcentral District FFA & 4-H Dairy Show qualified for entry in the state dairy show Sept. 20 in Harrisburg.

The state district dairy shows are second level qualifiers for the state show. Judges at the district shows select animals deemed worthy of state competition and award blue ribbons, regardless of show placing.

During breed sanctioned and other shows, the show placings determine the worthiness of an animal, and placings accrued during the show season are recognized by breed associations. For example, Holstein exhibitors can qualify their animals for All-American and All-Pennsylvania honor consideration through consistent show season success.

However, since the quality of cattle isn't even throughout the state, the blue ribbon process for the youth allows lower placed animals in shows with high competition to qualify for entry in the state finals, held in conjunction with the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show at the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

It also allows judges to eliminate from state entry those animals with little competition that place high in their animal age class.

Depending upon local 4-H rules, which can prohibit some youth from qualifying at district shows if they have not met local 4-H program requirements, youth are no longer restricted to participating in a district show nearest to their home, but are free to enter any of the district shows held statewide July through August.

At the Southcentral District show, youth from Bucks, Cumberland, Franklin, Huntingdon, Lancaster, Perry and York counties participated.

The following is a list, by county, of those who received blue ribbons and may compete in Harrisburg at the state competition.

Thurmont, Emmitsburg Show Is Sept. 10-12

THURMONT, Md. — This year marks the 43rd anniversary of the Thurmont and Emmitsburg Community Show scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 10, 11 and 12 at Catoctin High School in Thurmont, Maryland.

More than 2,500 farm and garden, household, quilt, livestock, machinery and commercial displays can be seen during the three-day event.

Each year, the community show honors an organization for its contributions to community life. This year the show will be celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Rocky Ridge Fire Company.

Saturday's activities include a Beef, Sheep and Swine Fitting and Showing contest from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and a pet show beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Thurmont Grange will serve a family style turkey and ham supper in the school cafeteria from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The Frederick County Sheriff's Posse Band will play from 6 to 8 p.m. in the auditorium on Saturday evening.

Milking equipment, gasoline engines, and machinery will be displayed throughout the event. "Homer" and "Albert," owned by Ernest Jackson will be back again this year. The Brown Swiss are 12 years old and weigh 3,000 pounds each. Pigs, calves and emus will also be on display.

The Catoctin area FFA Alumni Beef, Sheep and Swine sale will be held in the Ag Center area at 7 p.m. The 24th anniversary program will begin at 6:45 p.m.

On Sunday, September 12, the show opens at 10 a.m. with a dairy and goat show. The decorated animal contest will follow this event. At noon, in the school cafeteria, a chicken barbecue will be served by the Catoctin FFA Alumni.

The Catoctin Mountain Horseshoe Pitching Contest will begin at 1 p.m., and the cross cut sawing contest will begin at 2 p.m. under the tent.

You run a farm, not a test plot.

At Agway, we recognize the complexity and importance of selecting the "best" seed hybrids and varieties each year. There are hundreds to choose from, all with competing claims. Testing each one would be great, but we know that's impossible—you have a farm to run, not a test plot.

That's why Agway does the testing for you on over 100 Northeast and Mid-Atlantic test sites. Only after a hybrid or variety has been repeatedly proven a leader does it earn the right to wear the Agway name. Which means you can count on Agway Farm Seed to give you exceptional performance under the toughest growing conditions. Year after year, field after field.

For more information on how we provide practical, proven seed solutions that help turn your growing challenges into profitable results, contact your nearest Agway, Reading Bone, Milford Fertilizer Company or Andgrow Farm Center.

How Much Is That Corn Silage Worth?

JOHN RUTHERFORD
ALAN STROCK
Penn State University Extension
Farm Management Agents

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — If corn silage were not available, a standard alternative would be to feed dry hay and corn.

So, calculating a price for corn silage should be based on a price equivalent to these more widely available feedstuffs.

These commodities prices are often listed in farm publications, making these calculations more transparent.

On a dry matter basis, 1 ton of average corn silage is equivalent to about 5 tons of ear corn.

From this base, adjustments should be made for moisture, harvest, and transportation.

Base Price For Alternative Feeds

Average quality grass hay at 90% dry matter.
___/tons X .5=___(a)

Ear corn at 90% dry matter.
___/tons X .5=___
X ___(factor*) =___(b)

* Because some year's silage includes less ear corn than normal, you may need to adjust the ear corn value in the base price. This is especially important is a dry year. Simply give the standing corn a score from 1 (little or no ear formation) to 5 (normal) and use the applicable factor that corresponds to the score.

Ear Score	Factor
2	.5
5	1.0

Total (a) and (b) for a base price at 90% DM.
___(a) + ___ (b)=___(base)

Correcting For Moisture

%DM of purchased silage/
%DM of base silage (90%)
X ___(base)
= ___(moisture adjusted price)

Harvesting

Large capacity custom operators can harvest corn silage for about $2 per ton. Individual farmers may have higher costs. To be fair to the seller, a standard range should be used to calculate the cost of turning standing corn into chopped material. Depending on the convenience of the field and other factors affecting field work efficiency, the silage price should be reduced by $3 to $4 for harvesting.

Transportation

This sheet calculates a price f.o.b. from the seller's farm, so transportation cost applies only when the seller transports. In that case, when the seller transports, transportation is added to the price.

A loose standard for this cost is 50-cents/mile/ton. If the buyer hauls, then no transportation adjustment is necessary.

(Note: f.o.b. stands for "free on board" and means that a seller agrees to put something on a truck or other mode of transportation at no charge, but the transportation costs must be paid by the buyer. The term is widely used in business.)

Additives

Additives are only a concern when buying silage already chopped. Anyone can add anything to silage and claim it makes the silage worth more.

Often this is very true, but sometimes conditions and application rates negate the effectiveness of the additive.

Sometimes the additive covers up an otherwise poor management decision. These instances should not be the concern of the buyer. Don't pay more, sight unseen, for anything added to silage.

If there is a question about the improvement to the silage, have it tested. The seller is entitled to a premium for higher quality silage.

However, the buyer is not automatically indebted to the seller for everything added to the mixture.

Other Considerations

Inspect samples throughout the purchasing process. If the corn is sold standing in the field, be certain to close the deal in time to harvest at proper maturity and moisture.

It should not be the seller's concern (discount) if late chopped (by the buyer) silage has poor feed quality.

When purchasing fermented silage, check for fineness of cut, odors, and molds. Any aspects that do not meet the buyer's standards are valid points for negotiating a discount.

On the other hand, if you really need corn silage and no other is available, your bargaining position is weak, leaving you no choice but to pay more. At that point, you should consider your option to feed grass hay and corn until silage does become available at a price and quality you can accept.

EXAMPLE:

Let's say you want to buy corn from a neighbor to chop and put in your own silo. The going rate for ear corn is $80 and the price for average grass hay is $110.

Walking through the field showed you that the ears are slightly off from what would be there in a normal year, so you would score the ears a '4.' You expect to make the silage at 70 percent moisture (30% DM). What price should you offer for the silage?

Hay	$55
Corn	$36 (80x.5x.9)
Total	$91 at 90%DM

Correct for moisture .30/.90 x $91 = $30.34

You will harvest the silage with good equipment, but the field has some odditites making it harder to operate in. Deduct $3.34 from the price for harvesting.

$30.34 - $3.34 = $27 per ton.

This $27 is the price offered for the corn in this example. For your own situation, follow the same calculations, adjusting as the situation fits.

University of Maryland Professor Named Animal and Avian Sciences Department Chair

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Dr. Richard Erdman has been named chair of the Department of Animal and Avian Sciences at the University of Maryland College of Agriculture and Natural Resources following an extensive, nationwide search. A Maryland faculty member since 1979, Erdman will assume his new position in mid-August.

"Rich will make an excellent department chair," said Dr. Thomas Fretz following the announcement of Erdman's appointment. "As we move into the next century, he will give critical leadership as the college strives to fulfill its commitment to the poultry, dairy, beef and aquaculture industries of Maryland."

Erdman is looking forward to the challenge and the change provided by his new administrative duties. "We have a very good department with outstanding faculty members," he said. "I think we're in the best position we've been in for 20 years, and I think we can build on our strengths and become a truly outstanding department."

After growing up on a dairy farm in Wisconsin, Erdman received his bachelor's degree in animal science and agronomy from the University of Wisconsin-River Falls. He then earned master's and doctorate degrees in animal sciences at the University of Kentucky.

Erdman has written about 60 articles published in refereed journals, as well as a chapter on vitamins for the book "Large Dairy Herd Management." He is also the author of numerous extension bulletins and co-editor of the newsletter, Dairy Talk, produced three times a year for all dairy producers in Maryland. His research has involved such diverse subjects as the benefits of chlorine supplementation in lactating dairy cows, the impact of trans fatty acid on milk fat production, and management strategies to maximize skeletal growth rate in dairy heifers.

During his years at Maryland, Erdman has taught classes in applied animal nutrition, animal production systems, energy nutrition, and special topics in ruminant nutrition. He hopes to continue teaching one course a year and to continue some level of involvement on research projects.

Erdman's professional and university organization affiliations reflect his commitment to the college, his peers, and Maryland agriculture. He is a member of the American Society of Animal Sciences, the Maryland Feed Industry Council, the American Institute of Nutrition, and the American Registry of Animal Scientists. He has served as a representative on the University of Maryland faculty senate, the Task Force on Computer Use in Agricultural Extension Education, the Agricultural Program Reorganization Committee, the College of Agriculture Strategic Planning Committee, and the Animal Sciences and Poultry Sciences Transition Committee.

He has won a variety of awards, including the Young Scientist Award at the Northeast Regional Meeting of the American Dairy Science Association and the American Society of Animal Sciences, the American Dairy Science Association American Feed Industries Association Dairy Nutrition Research Award, and the Excellence in Research Award from the University of Maryland Agricultural Alumni Association.

Farm Bureau Wants Deer Hunting Decision Reconsidered

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Bureau has asked the Pennsylvania Game Commission to reconsider its decision not to allow the sale of surplus antlerless deer hunting tags for the 1999 hunting season.

Farm Bureau member Douglas Gilbert of Guys Mills, who serves on the farm organization's Wildlife Damage Control Committee, made the request during the Game Commission meeting taking place this week in Harrisburg. The Commission hasn't approved the sale of unsold, surplus tags since the 1997 deer season.

Gilbert, a hay, grain and beef farmer from Crawford County, told Commission members, "We recognize the fact that many hunters feel that surplus tag usage on State Game lands will harm their harvest success rate in future years. Farm Bureau is simply asking that you allow county treasurers to sell surplus tags this fall that may only be used to hunt antlerless deer on private lands with the permission of the private property owner."

Farmers are currently coping with price slumps, economic hardships, and urban sprawl, Gilbert said. "Wildlife damage to their already economically depleted and drought-stricken crops is driving farmers out of business," he testified.

Responses to a survey conducted by Farm Bureau show average yield losses totaled about 35 percent due to white-tail deer feeding on crops in 1998. "Average loss per farm family due to the prolific deer herd was approximately $9,602," said Gilbert. He urged to Commission to "please reconsider" the issuance of surplus deer tags this season.

Gilbert also drew attention to a Farm Bureau recommendaiton, the Small Landowner Deer Management Proposal. Under the plan, farmers and small landowners could enroll their property in a Game Commission Landowner Database by filling out a simple form or via the Internet. "Enrollment would then enable sportsmen to access the name, address and telephone number of the property owner via the Internet or by contacting the Game Commission Regional Office," Gilbert explained. "Sportsmen could then apply for surplus tags not yet distributed in that Deer Management Unit." Hunting under such a program would be only with the landowner's permission, Gilbert added.

Farm Bureau recommended some changes in the deer depredation permit hunting program which allows antlerless deer hunting during specified off-season times from February through September on farms with severe deer damage problems. Farm Bureau asked that reports from farmers using the program be required less frequently than the current weekly basis. Farm Bureau also asked that farmers be entitled to issue twice as many deer hunting permits to hunters — one permit for every five acres of cultivated land instead of the current quota of one permit for every 10 acres. Farm Bureau also expressed its support for the Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs' recommendation that all licensed sportsmen be able to participate in the deer depredation permit hunting program, including hunters under age 18.

Addressing other wildlife crop damage problems, Gilbert said, ". . . many of our Farm Bureau members in southwest Pennsylvania are being hit hard with extreme turkey damage."

Damage has been as severe as deer damage in some areas, he said. Farm Bureau is asking the Game Commission to develop a "hotspot" program for hunting turkey on farms with crop damage problems. "We also recommend that the bag limit be raised to two bearded birds for the spring gobbler season," Gilbert added.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is a voluntary, non-governmental organization which represents over 27,000 farm and rural families.

Ty-Ly-View Gold Dust Saturday Strikes It Rich At District Jersey Show

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga County) — "With all these quality animals, I can understand why you have a district show here," said judge Chuck Luchsinger of Silver Spring Farm, Syracuse, N.Y., as he judged the 1999 Northeast District Jersey Show.

Although the show had only 84 entries, quality was high as exhibitors saw junior 3-year-old Ty-Ly-View Gold Dust Saturday, owned by Paul and Carolyn Moyer, chosen the grand champion of the show. Named the reserve grand champion of the day was Nobledale Dunker Veryl, also a junior 3-year-old, owned by Stuart Noble.

The junior champion of the day was Brenda Hodder's spring yearling, Four Springs Counciler Missy M. The reserve junior champion in the open division was also the junior champion of the youth show. Michelle Adam's summer yearling, RS DC Panda, took those honors.

The reserve junior champion of the youth show was Jer-Sweet Alana Prince Apple, a fall calf owned by Kimberly Barker.

The Premier Performance winner was Tin D Champ Dottie Donna, an entry in the lifetime production class owned by Paul and Carolyn Moyer. The 10-year-old cow has a lifetime production of 123,000 pounds of milk, 6,000 pounds of fat, and 5,000 pounds of protein. Mid-Atlantic Small Farm Conference Set

FOREST HILL, Md. — The Maryland Cooperative Extension, in partnership with the Harford Community College, will be presenting the 1999 Mid-Atlantic Small Farm Conference Oct. 1-2.

The general session of the conference Oct. 1 will convene at 9:15 a.m. at the Aberdeen Holiday Inn, Aberdeen, Md. On Oct. 2, the second day's meeting will be held at the Harford Community College's Higher Education Advanced Technology Center (H.E.A.T.).

This conference is designed to address issues that face the small farm operator whether they are full or part time. Providing the keynote during the general session will be nationally recognized agriculture advocate Dr. John Ikerd. Joining Ikerd for the morning session will be Savannah Williams of the Rural Coalition and small part-time farmer, to discuss small farming in a national scale. Duke Burrus, USDA program specialist, will discuss market evaluation for farm products and Terry Poole, Maryland Cooperative Extension educator, will examine the concept of small farm cooperatives.

Highlighting Friday's afternoon session will be a tour of three local small farm operations. Slated for visits will be farms producing fruits and vegetables, pasture poultry, rabbits, beef, as well as a certified organic operation. This tour will feature farms that operate and market via roadside stands, farmers' markets, private sales, and C.S.A. venues. Friday evening's program offers a dinner reception that includes discussions with the operators of the farms visited on the tour.

Saturday at the H.E.A.T. Center, concurrent sessions on a variety of topics will be the day-long feature.

Cost for the conference is $45 for individual participants and $75 for a farm family up to two persons. Registration deadline is Sept. 25. There is no one-day registration fee. This fee covers most meals and materials for the two days.

Space for the conference is limited, so register early. For a conference packet or more information, contact Robert Halman at the Harford County Cooperative Extension Office at (410) 638-3255.

OVERCOMING SHORT FEED SUPPLIES

As I write this article, the drought continues in Pennsylvania. Many cattlemen have been feeding hay to their cow herds for two months or more, and this will seriously affect winter feed supplies.

While there will be no easy answers to recovering feed needs for this winter, there are a couple of options that producers can consider to provide the feed they need and reduce the cost.

The following rations are designed to have effectively the same nutritional value to maintain a beef cow in moderate flesh for the winter: (dical=dicalcium phosphate)

- Ration #1: 18 pounds wheat straw, 4.5 pounds corn, 1 pound soybean meal, .25 pound dical
- Ration #2: grazed corn stalks, 1.5 pounds soybean meal, .25 pound dical
- Ration #3: 22 pounds alfalfa hay, .25 pound dical
- Ration #4: 20 pounds grass hay, 2 pounds corn, 1 pound soybean meal, .25 pound dical

Using the following prices:

- Corn stalks=$.25/head/day.
- Corn grain=$2.40/bu.
- Soybean meal=$260/ton.
- Wheat straw=$80/ton.
- Alfalfa hay=$120/ton.
- Grass hay=$55/ton.
- Dical=$250/ton.
- Corn silage=$30/ton.

The daily cost for each ration per cow is:

- Ration #1: $1.09.
- Ration #2: $.57.
- Ration #3: $1.25.
- Ration #4: $.76.

This information shows that lower quality forages may be the most desirable since they can be supplemented effectively with a cheap source of energy — corn. Local prices reflect this disparity in the cost of hay versus corn, and this may continue.

For example, the price of energy in corn at $2.40/bu. is $.048/pound of TDN, while the price of energy in 55 percent TDN hay at $80/ton is $.072. Therefore, lower quality forages plus corn may be the cheapest winter feed this year. This is shown in ration #4 when cheaper, lower quality hay is available.

Secondly, the cost of using stalk fields, even when charging $.25/head/day, is still very cheap feed. This method also extends short hay supplies while meeting the needs of the cow.

Besides the direct cost of feeds, consider also the reduction of storage and feeding losses in stored forage. At least 10 percent more feed will be available for large round bales stored outside if they are covered with something. Net wrap does little to help preserve hay (it is most effective to reduce baling time), so cover all the bales that are outside. Secondly, get bales off of the ground if possible. Pallets, stone, or logs can be used, and the worst losses in the bale can be avoided. Keep the bales out from under trees, as trees gather rain and snow to drip on the bales. Store the bales in a well-drained area so water moves away from them and not toward or under them.

Use a bale-feeding device of some kind. Ring feeders will usually result in about 8 percent feeding losses, but those losses can be 40 percent or more when using no feeder. Our work here at Penn State has shown the inverted cone feeder will have the lowest feeding loss — about 4 percent — and are effective if you have the equipment needed to lift bales into them. Make sure the cows effectively clean up a bale before feeding the next one. Cows will always eat the least desirable stuff last, so, when you keep giving them new bales, they will tend to leave some of the last bale behind.

Finally, while it does not sound like a feeding recommendation, wean your calves now. A cow herd has been shown to be 43 percent more effective in using feed resources when calves were weaned early compared to weaning at the conventional seven months or later. The reasons for this are logical: when a cow passes her peak lactation for the year, it is more effective to put feed directly into the calf rather than feeding a cow to produce milk.

Goat Sale Does Well At Bedford County Fair

Curryville Agway purchased the grand champion market goat shown by Tanner Waltemire for $3.50 per pound.

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — It was only the second year for goats to be paraded across the auction block at the Bedford County Fair, and they probably exceeded all expectations.

The 23 animals grossed $3,316.72 with the grand champion going for $3.50 per pound.

Tanner Waltemire, Everett, showed the 103-pound buck purchased by Curryville Agway.

The reserve grand champion owned by Jonathon T. May of Buffalo Mills brought $4 per pound. Erik Turkovich of American Outfitters purchased the 100-pound animal.

Lampeer Farms of Loysburg purchased the lightweight champion of 43 pounds from Ben Sollenberger for $2.25. The middleweight 58-pound champ went for $2. Owned by Tanner Waltemire, it was purchased by Morrison's Cove Livestock Market.

Ben Sollenberger saw his 44-pound lightweight reserve champ go for $2 to Lampeer.

Bedford Valley purchased the final goat for $3 per pound. The owner Melissa Shastay had written a note to Bedford Valley thanking them for purchasing her animal last year but said, "I think it would be nice if you purchased someone else's this year." Instead, Bedford Balley decided they would have the animal at any cost.

Brandi Hall, Jolene Hall, Aleecha Jones, Melissa Shastay, and Nickolas Jones all donated 5 percent of their sale to a special "goat building" fund.

Commanding the highest price in the market lambs was Shane Zerbys 109-pound animal which was purchased by Citizens and Northern Bank for $2.30 per pound.

Milk from the six champion dairy cows was sold as well with prices ranging from $225 to $400. Proceeds from the milk auction are split between the 4-H or FFA member and the organization to which he or she belongs.

Middlebury Cooperative had the high bid for milk from Bradley Wales Milking Shorthorn. The second high bid was from Reeds Feed Mill. They bid $375 for milk from Tricia McIlwains grand champion Jersey.

Land-Use Planning: What challenges Will The 21st Century Hold?

I recently had the opportunity to coordinate a tour for Jim Landers, a newspaper reporter for The Dallas Morning News, who was interested in writing a feature article on Lancaster County's land-use planning.

In order to give Landers a background on the planning activities in Lancaster County, we met with several County leaders including Lancaster County Commissioner Terry Kauffman, who made it evident that Lancaster has been in a decade long struggle with land-use planning. In fact, the County is at risk of losing significant acres of the precious farmland it is known for. One unique thing about Lancaster is that it is one of the only counties in Pennsylvania where the building industry supports urban growth boundaries (UGB's).

Kauffman feels that in order to enact effective UGB's, the decision needs to remain in Lancaster County, not Harrisburg. A possible statewide planning board to create a vision for land use in PA may be beneficial, but a statewide planning board will not enhance the decisions for land-use in Lancaster's community, according to Kauffman.

To grasp the details and future direction of the UGB's we met with Ronald Bailey, the executive director of the Lancaster County Planning Commission. In 1994 the first UGB's were established to help contain growth but unfortunately they have had limited effectiveness. In 1997, 75 percent of new homes were built within the UGB's. But the problem exists with the 25 percent of homes that were built outside the UGB's since they consumed 66 percent of the total land developed. The UGB's are set to control the next 20 years of growth, however at the current consumption of land, Lancaster County is growing at two to three times faster than predicted.

The answer to this rapid use of land lies in a couple of areas. First, we must use our current land within the UGB's more efficiently. Many of the current developments are using between half and one acre lot sizes, with some as big as five acres. If we were to make these lot sizes just a quarter acre or less, we could utilize our land much more effectively. We must also simplify the process of land development within the UGB's to prevent the spread outside of them, while making it more difficult to develop those acres outside the boundary.

To view land-use planning from a business perspective, we met with Dan Witmer, president of The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce & Industry. Witmer feels the heart of Lancaster's economy is primarily based on manufacturing and the business community, not on agriculture. He feels public preservation may not be the best answer in land use. According to Witmer, we must allow business growth to occur in the county in order to retain a healthy economy. He also noted that the Chamber supports Lancaster County's Comprehensive Plan and its related Urban Growth Boundaries.

It appears the future of Lancaster County's farmland is headed in a good direction as it anticipates the largest single contribution ever from the state to protect farms from development. As the County continues to lose over 2,500 acres of precious farmland a year, the nearly $7 million in state money that is expected to pay for agricultural conservation easements in Lancaster County is needed greatly. This extra money will allow the Lancaster Ag Preservation Board to purchase easements on 4,000 acres, some of which have waited since 1993. The Preservation Board views the expected 500,000 new residents in Lancaster County in the next 50 years as the biggest challenge in the future and the preservation of individual farms as just a small component in preserving the food chain.

A Chinese Proverb simply puts it, "The well-being of a people is like a tree: Agriculture is its root, manufacture and commerce are its branches and its leaves. If the root is injured, the leaves fall, the branches break away, and the tree dies." It seems impossible to try and solve the County's land use planning struggles, with one simple answer. There are many different angles and approaches that officials must look at when considering land-use strategies. The important thing is to plan for future growth of your county, so that when faced with those difficult decisions, a plan is intact to use that is agreed upon by both the agriculture and business communities.

Feel free to send your comments and ideas by email to Brent Landis at the Chamber at blandis@lcci.com or call him at 717-397-3531.

Last Year	2501	1692

CATTLE: Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers and heifers sold .50-1.00 lower. Much of this week's downside pressure can be blamed on the Labor Day holiday. Reduced slaughter rates lowered packer demand and retailers have already stocked their shelves for the holiday rush. The next news to move the market will be how empty the meatcases aer after SMonday's holiday. Many local farmers are busy cutting feed and filling silos, but this year's ilage is sure to be low in grain content. This feed will be better for growing light cattle, rather than finishing fat cattle. However, with the Midwest's bumper crop, corn should be affordable enough for area feeders to purchase. This week's Holstein steer market was mostly 1.00 lower on a fairly light test. Slaughter cows closed steady to 1.00 lower and slaughter bulls ended steady to weak. Supply included 49 percent slaughter steers, 4 percent slaughter heifers, 36 percent slaughter cows. 4 percent slaughter bulls, with the balance made up of feeder cattle.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1130-1470 lbs. 65.25-68.75. Choice 2-3 1050-1485 lbs. 63.25-66.50, high dressing 1-2 up to 68.25; 1485-1565 lbs. 60.75-64.00. SLAUGHTER COWS: Breakers 75-80 pct lean over 1400 lbs. 39.50-44.75, low dressing 37.00-40.00; Boners, 80-85 pct lean over 1200 lbs. 36.75-41.25, low dressing 33.50-37.00; Lean (Hi-Yield) 85-88 pct lean over 1200 lbs. 35.50-39.00, low dressing 33.50-36.00; Lean 88-90 pct lean over 1000 lbs. 32.00-36.00, low dreswsing 29.50-32.75; Lean (Light-Wt.) 85-90 pct lean 750-1000 lbs. 29.75-33.25, low dressing 25.50-30.50.

SLAUGHTER BULLS: Yield grade 1 1455-2095 lbs. 47.50-55.25, few up to 57.00; Yield grade 2 1055-2195 lbs. 40.00-47.75.

BULLOCKS: Choice 2-3 1210-1465 lbs. 55.00-64.00. Select 1-3 960-1500 lbs. 45.74-55.00.

CALVES: Compared to last week, veal calves closed 2.00-6.00 lower on a good week's test. Slaughter calves ended steady to 5.00 lower, Holstein bulls resuming to feed sold progressively lower as the week went on. Uncertainty about the veal market during the first week of the year 2000 pressured the market. Holstein bulls closed about 70.00 lower than last week. Holstein heifer demand continues to be very good and prices were unevenly steady as buyers seemed more particular as to quality.

VEALERS: Good and Choice 70-110 lbs. 15.00-32.00. Few up to 35.00. Standard and low God 60-90 lbs. 11-20.00.

SLAUGHTER CALVES: Good and Choice 200-300 lbs. 75.00-95.00; 350-550 lbs. 55.00-75.00. Standard 300-600 lbs. 50.00-65.00.

Simply Sizzlin

From coast to coast, the cheeseburger remains a family favorite for backyard cookouts.

What makes a cheeseburger so popular?

"It's simplicity, of course," said Jackie Rae Schriner, Bradford County dairy princess. "With more than 200 varieties of cheese produced in the U.S. today, the possibilities for unique and flavorful cheeseburgers are endless."

It's true — change the flavor of your cheeseburger by trying a different flavor of cheese.

If these ideas aren't sufficent, the Beef Council has a wonderful brochure with 101 ways to build a better burger. To receive your free copy of "Goodness Gracious Great Grills A Fire!" request it from the Pennsylvania Beef Council, 1500 Fulling Mill Rd., Middletown, PA 17057.

8 (¼-inch thick) ham steaks

Preheat grill. In bowl, combine pineapple, marmalade, mustard and cloves. Grill ham steaks over medium-high heat 5 to 6 minutes or until hot, turning once and basting with glaze. Serve with remaining glaze. Serves 8.

Labor Day marks summer's end for many families. Leisure days are replaced with sending the kids back to school and cooler temperatures.

But before bidding farewell to summer, enjoy this one last fling to create a simply sizzlin' cookout. Grill meats, vegetables, and breads — a wonderful way to add flavor to the meal and reduce dishwashing.

Remember to play it safe from food-bourne illnesses. Keep these tips in mind for safe, simple entertainment:

- Don't baste meat with the same marinade it has been sitting in.
- Don't put cooked meat on the same platter that held the raw meat.
- Clean hands and surfaces with hot soapy water after handling raw meat.
- Keep cold dishes cold and hot dishes hot until ready to serve.
- Wash all fruits and vegetables before serving.

Here are some guidelines for grilling vegetables, courtesy of the Beef Council. You can sprinkle with seasonings of your choice or brush on a glaze.

Happy Grilling!

GREAT GRILLED VEGETABLES

Eggplant: Cut small egg plants (3 to 4-ounces each) lengthwise in half. Grill 10 to 12 minutes.

Bell Peppers: Cut peppers (green, red, yellow, orange) lengthwise in half; remove seeds. Grill 12 to 15 minutes.

Green Onions: Grill whole green onion about 5 minutes.

Mushrooms: Grill whole mushrooms 12 to 14 minutes. Cut after cooking.

Onions: Cut onions crosswise into ½ -inch thick slices. Grill 15 to 20 minutes.

Squash: Cut small yellow or zucchini squash lengthwise in half. Grill 8 to 12 minutes.

Tomatoes: Cut tomatoes into ½ to ¾ -inch thick slices. Grill 3 to 5 minutes or until heated through.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Like so many crops this season, the queen of vegetable gardens has been having a less-than-banner year.

So much for winning any giant tomato contests this season.

According to numerous studies done in recent years, tomatoes are the number one crop cultivated by home gardeners. Even folks who don't grow any garden at all will often tuck a tomato stalk into a container and tend it on their back balcony.

Supermarket tomatoes have made great strides in their taste and texture in recent times, though I still have yet to find one that is an identical replica of the real thing. The paste-type tomato that is often available in produce comes closer than some and is a welcome ingredient in sandwiches. But, it still lacks that backyard, sun-warmed sweetness and flavor.

We bested our previous ripe tomato record this year, lovingly picking the first red Early Girl in late June. Admittedly, it had been coddled along in a protective Wall-O-Water plastic shelter, and hand watered against the drought which was already then making its ominous way into the season.

After enjoying those first two or three small tomatoes, however, we endured a few weeks delay until the regular tomato section of the garden began paying its way. In an effort to let more sunshine in through the tangle of stalks, I moved tomato vines around to better expose the fruits to the light and warmth.

What a mistake. The sunshine turned out to be that intense, 100-degree stuff, quickly burning sunspots on the sides of the tomatoes I had exposed. That game plan promptly went out the window, the rest of them have since been ripening under the light shade of foliate, just the way the stalks put 'em. In fact, until cooler weather moved in, I was making it a point to recover with stalks and foliage any tomatoes exposed to the sun in the process of picking.

While we have had more productive years with much larger tomatoes, this year's still taste absolutely wonderful. Perhaps they are like the sugary sweet peaches of the season, concentrating their flavor and taste into a smaller package.

So we pair these juicy, delicious orbs with meat, cheese, and dill pickles for hearty evening sandwiches, section them over our salads (we like a little salad with our tomatoes, not the other way around), toss them with Italian herbs and salad dressing, or just slice them and dust lightly with salt and pepper.

It doesn't get any better than that, foodwise.

While we treasure having our fresh, homegrown tomatoes, there are limits to just how far we will go in immersing ourselves on their nutritious deliciousness.

We have yet to get as carried away with tomatoes as some partygoers in Spain, who recently took part in a fiesta during which a reported more than 30,000 participants threw over 140 tons – tons! of tomatoes at one another in a giant food fight. Yuck!

But it sure would feel good to lob at least one fat, juicy one at the groundhog, which, in the last few days, has begun sampling bites out of the biggest, nicest tomatoes.

And I'll be sure to pick one of those that has a rotting sunspot on it.

At least, it won't be a total waste that way.

Attend State Dairy Princess Pageant Sept. 18

CLARION (Clarion Co.) — Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services Inc. has announced that its 43rd Annual Dairy Princess pageant will be held on Saturday evening, September 18 at the Sheraton Harrisburg-East. A milk punch reception will start at 5:30 p.m. followed by a banquet at 6:30 p.m. and the coronation.

Thirty-two county dairy princesses will compete for the title of Pennsylvania dairy princess now held by Jennifer Dotterer of Clinton County. The newly selected princess and two alternates will reign for a period of one year from September 1999 to September 2000. During that time, they will represent the dairy farmers of Pennsylvania speaking out for its number one agricultural industry and all dairy products.

The pageant, which will be held on the Saturday evening preceding the annual All-American Dairy Week, will end two full days of acitivies and interviews for the contestants. Four judges, all from out-of-state, will select a Pennsylvania dairy princess and two alternates from seven finalists.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess program is supported by Pennsylvania dairy farmers through their various advertising and promotion agencies: American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc., American Dairy Association/Dairy Council-Middle Atlantic, American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mideast, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and Allied Milk Producers with contributions from other dairy related organizations and individuals. Again this year, as the result of a grant from Sire Power, Inc. and several anonymous individuals, the awards to the winners will be: $1,200 to the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and $600 to each of her two alternates.

In addition, two contestants will receive $100 awards for outstanding dairy presentations designed for school children and, two others will receive $100 each for the two best speeches designed for adult audiences. As in the past, there will also be two $50 awards for compiling scrapbooks which chronicle dairy princess activities to date. The contestants themselves will select the coveted "Miss Congeniality" award from among their own ranks.

For over 40 years the primary purpose of the dairy princess program in Pennsylvania is the promotion of the dairy industry and its products on the local grass roots level. Incentive awards will again be given to the counties whose last years' princess and her committee completed the incentive requirements.

In addition, an individual award of $300 will be given to the young woman who stood out as the outstanding dairy promoter during her county reign. This award, "Tina Shultz Memorial Award" is given in memory and honor of the oustanding young lady, who in May 1986 succumbed to cancer, during her reign as Huntingdon County Dairy Princess.

PA Dairy Princess and Promotion Services announces that the Saturday morning presentation competition will be open to the public free of charge. It will run from 8:00 a.m. until 12 noon in the Sheraton Ballroom. Interested persons are invited and urged to attend.

Saturday evening, September 18, promises to be an exciting evening for 32 county contestants and their families as well as for our Pennsylvania Dairy Industry. Tickets for the event are $20 per person and are available on a "first come" basis from Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc., 214 South Street, Box 640, Clarion, PA 16214. (814) 226-7470 or Fax (814) 226-8698. All tickets must be paid in advance and will be held for pick up at the door.

All friends of the dairy business are urged to attend and lend their support to these hard working young ambassadors.

Mushrooms: A Great Appetizer

We are fortunate to have available fresh mushrooms in our food markets on a year-round basis. Mushrooms lend themselves to many different recipes and make wonderful appetizers. Here are some ways you can prepare some tasty and attractive appetizers.

Create an Appetizer

Place small mushroom caps on buttered tray, caps down & broil for 4 minutes. Add one of the following:

- A piece of your favorite cheese and broil until cheese melts
- A slice of pepperoni and broil until pepperoni is heated
- A teaspoon tomato sauce & mozzarella cheese and boil until the cheese melts.

Wrap small mushrooms in bacon and broil until bacon cooks. Saute mushrooms caps in butter. Place a small square of cheddar cheese in each cap. Place in shallow baking dish. Sprinkle cheese with oregano. Bake at 350° F until cheese melts.

Mushroom Cheese Spread

Chop and steam, then drain well: 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms. Mix together 8 oz. cream cheese, 1/2 cup sour cream, 1 tablespoon chives.

Add to chopped mushrooms and mix well. Spread on crackers or mini-bread squares.

Stuffed Mushroom

Wash, stem and drain 3 pounds mushrooms.

Melt 4 tablespoons butter on cookie sheet in 375° oven. Remove and let cool. Place raw mushroom caps on cookie sheet in melted butter.

Mix together: 1-1/2 pounds ground meat, 3/4 cup Parmesan cheese, 2 cloves garlic, minced, 1-1/2 cups bread crumbs, 1-1/2 tablespoons parsley, 3 eggs, beaten, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 3/4 cup milk, 1/2 teaspoon oregano. Stuff mushroom caps with mixture. Bake at 350° F for 45 minutes, or more depending on size of mushrooms, until the meat is cooked. Remove from oven and place on serving tray. Serve hot.

Mushroom Caviar

In a large skillet, melt 1 cup butter. Saute for 4-5 minutes, add 1 cup finely chopped onions. Stir in 1/2 tespoon paprika. Cook 1 minute. Add 2 cups finely chopped mushrooms, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and pepper to taste.

Cook about 5 minutes, stirring often, until mixture is soft but not dry. Remove from heat and cool. When cool, stir in 1 cup sour cream, 2 tablespoons chopped chives and 1 cup chopped fresh dill or 1-1/2 tablespoons dried dill weed. Refrigerate until serving time. Spread on crackers or black bread.

Ginger Baked Mushrooms

Soften a small amount (not melted) and add a pinch of ginger. Blend well and rub all over, inside and outside, of fresh mushroom caps. Set mushrooms cap side up, in a small glass pie plate keeping them very close together. Bake in 400° F oven for 8 to 10 minutes. Spear with picks and serve hot.

FFA

FFA Chapter Participates In Commodity Marketing Activity

The Cowanesque FFA Chapter participated in the national FFA Organization's 1999 Spring Commodity Marketing Activity.

The Commodity marketing Activity (CMA) is a biannual activity that is conducted for a six-week period in the spring and fall of each year.

CMA integrates the classroom with real-life experience, which helps students gain a practical knowledge of the business world. Teams create a model farm, which may consist of corn, soybeans, wheat, soybean meals, cattle, hogs, cotton, orange juice, and sugar. Team members decide when to buy and sell these products to achieve the greatest economic gain.

Orders are called to a commodity broker and the trade is recorded. Current prices and market conditions are utilized, however no money is exchanged. Each FFA chapter may have up to four teams consisting of an unlimited number of team members.

Winners are determined by combining the team's trading and final exam scores. The team, from each participating state, with the highest combined total will be presented with the state winner's plaque. A cash award will be given to the team with the highest overall score in the nation.

The Commodity marketing Activity is sponsored by the Stewart-Peterson Advisory Group, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and Date Transmission Network Corporation as a special project of the National FFA Foundation, Inc.

The state winning team was comprised of Daniel Cummings and Garrett Tice. The Commodity marketing Activity is a part of the Agricultural Business Economics class at Cowanesque Valley High School. Each Student in the class is assigned to one of four teams for the trading activity. Cowanesque FFA Chapter had the state winning team in the fall 1998 and the fall 1997 competition as well.

Outstanding Ag In Classroom Teacher Lauded

CAMP HILL (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Young Farmers and Ranchers (YF&R) Committee has presented its 1999 "Outstanding Ag in the Classroom Teacher" Award to Christie Gamber of Hummelstown, a first grade teacher at Lower Dauphin School District in Dauphin County.

Gamber was cited for her superlative use of Ag in the Classroom concepts and materials in helping her students at East Hanover Elementary School better understand agriculture and its importance.

A graduate of last year's Ag in the Classroom workshop, Gamber said her goal during the past school year was to teach her students that agriculture was more than just "plows, sows, and cows." She used a wide range of hands-on activities to help her first-graders understand that, "everything we use, consume and need is somehow tied to agriculture."

The Ag in the Classroom program is a week-long accredited workshop conducted by the Agriculture Awareness Foundation of Pennsylvania. This year's workshop, held July 18-23 at the main campus of The Pennsylvania State University, was attended by more than 90 school teachers, mostly from elementary schools, from around the state. The teachers, through field trips and classroom instruction, learned about the vast scope of agriculture and agricultural activities in Pennsylvania and how to incorporate information about agriculture in their classroom lesson plans.

Tracie Sturges, a farm wife, mother and chairperson of PFB's Young Farmers & Ranchers Committee (YF&R), presented the award to Gamber during the Ag in the Classroom Sponsor Recognition Banquet held July 22 in State College.

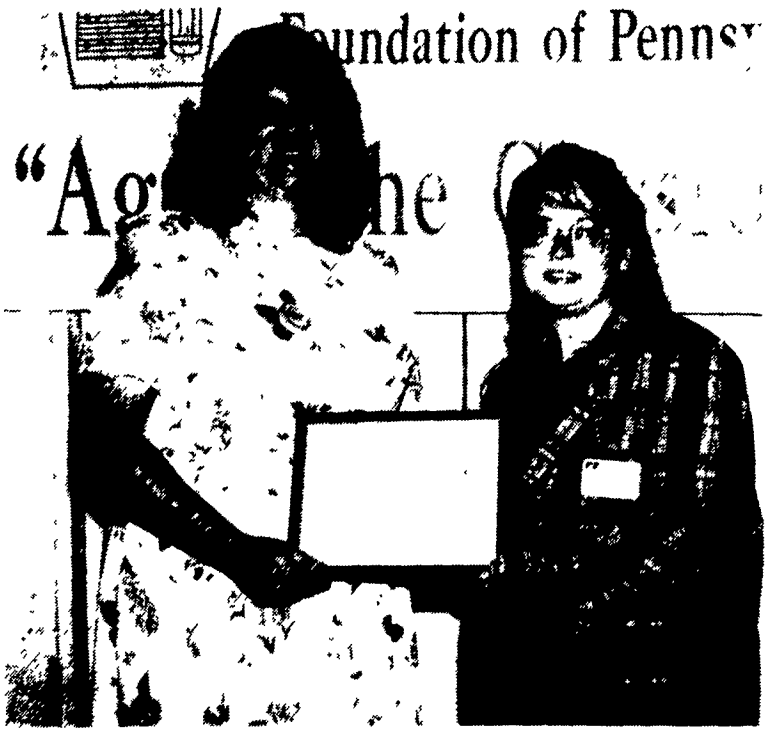
"In order for agriculture to remain a viable industry, it is important for the public to understand the crucial role that it plays in our history, economy and quality of life," said Sturges in announcing the award winner. "This education must begin with today's youth," she said. "That is why the YF&R Committee recognizes elementary school teachers, "who are doing an outstanding job of educating tomorrow's citizens about this nation's number one industry," Sturges said.

In accepting the award, Gamber said she was overwhelmed at first by the amount of Ag in the Classroom material she received at the workshop and wondered if she would ever be able to use it all.

"The biggest problem was thinking agriculture had to be a separate subject," she told 1999 workshop participants. "It didn't have to be. It works well with everything." Gamber taught her student about agriculture with lessons on insects, erosion, soil types, composting, farm animals, crops and their by-products, and planting from seeds. "We did something everyday relating to agriculture," she said.

As the grand prize winner, Gamber received $200 cash and $350 worth of Ag in the Classroom materials of her choice. A teaching team of Lori Gontis-Holloway and Sheila Ulerich from St. Peter's Elementary School, Somerset, received $100 cash and $250 worth of classroom material as the award runners-up. The prize winners were selected by a panel of judges based on the variety of agricultural concepts taught, the extent of integration into other subject matter, use of creative techniques and use of classroom, school and community resources. This marks the fourth year the YF&R Committee has presented the award to an Ag in the Classroom workshop graduate.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is a non-governmental, voluntary organization which represents over 27,000 farm and rural families. Its YF&R Committee sponsors programs and leadership development opportunities for young farmers between the ages of 18 and 35.



Christie Gamber, left, a first-grade teacher at East Hanover Elementary School, Lower Dauphin School District, recently received the Outstanding Ag in the Classroom Award from the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Young Farmers & Ranchers Committee. Presenting the award is YF&R chairperson Tracie Sturges, right.

Home Canning Meats

Have you thought of preserving soups, spaghetti sauce or chicken? Low acid foods like meats require a significantly higher processing temperature to destroy bacterial spores and toxins that can thrive in home canned products.

Penn State Cooperative Extension is offering two workshops featuring the basics on home pressure canning meats and products with meat as an ingredient. Testing of dial gauges will be available.

Classes are September 22, from 10 a.m. - noon or 7 - 9 p.m. at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster.

Cost is $3 to cover materials and handouts. Pre-registration is requested. Call Penn State Cooperative Extension at 717-394-6851 for information.

Champion Fitter On National Television

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

BERNVILLE (Berks Co.) — When 16-year-old Holly Moyer won champion fitter at Schuylkill Fair Dairy Show last year, she never expected to be featured on a national television station Nickelodeon.

To be named champion fitter was enough of a thrill for Holly, but to receive a phone call about a week later asking her to travel to Universal Studios in Florida to be taped for an upcoming television show was shocking.

"I thought there had to be a mistake," Holly said.

According to accounts, Holly was "discovered" by television producers via the Internet. A listing of the Schuylkill Fair results had been posted on the Internet for 4-H'ers to check.

A person from Nickelodeon was searching the Internet to find teenagers who had unusual hobbies. Fitting a cow was a new concept to the television host. It turned out to be an unheard of hobby to the four celebrity panelists who were to guess Holly's hobby by digesting the clues revealed.

Out of a pool of thousands of kids, 80 including Holly were selected to appear on the show.

The show is similar to the long-running Jeopardy! in which letters are flipped as contestants guess correctly. In this case, panelists were to guess the phase: "Clipped most cow hair to win contest."

Panelists figured out the words "cow," "win," and "contest," and were given a free word: "to."

The panelists were allowed to ask only yes or no questions. At the end of round three, panelists had a chance to guess her hobby. Because panelists could not determine her hobby, Holly won the grand prize—a trip for four to the island Barbados—and several other gifts.

Holly and her dad had traveled to Universal Studios together, while her mom and siblings remained behind to do the milking chores. Trip expenses were paid by the studio, which also rented a hotel so that all contestants could stay in the same place.

"It was really weird to see all the things kids did," Holly said. "One had rats that played basketball. Another had a dog that read commands such as 'lay down,' and 'bark' in English and Spanish.

"And I saw my first kangaroo," Holly said of the event.

Holly was surprised that so many people were intrigued with the cow that she was clipping. "Many contestants said they had never seen a cow before," Holly said.

Holly described the taping: "I felt nervous and stiff, but I kept smiling."

Although she had been asked to bring her own cow to clip during the taping, Holly refused. "The trip would be too hard on her," she explained. So the show provided a cow from a herd nearby the studio.

"The cow was accustomed to being showed and really cooperated well," Holly said.

She did not have the opportunity to preview the finished taping so she isn't sure if her nervousness showed.

Taping for the show was completed in August. The segment on Holly will air sometime between Sept. 15 and April.

"Cows are my best friends," Holly said. She has plenty of "friends" on the family farm. Called Peek-A-View Holsteins, the family milks 120 Holsteins, evenly divided between red and white and black and white.

"I prefer red and whites. They are neat to look at and are nicer to work with, although I like both," Holly said.

Holly owns 10 to 15 of the stock.

Her parents, Paul E. and Lucinda Moyer, own four farms encompassing 1,500 acres in partnership with her dad's three brothers.

"The farms are separate and we make our own money but work the land together," Holly said. Her grandfather had purchased the farm and added a stanchion barn and expanded it twice. The Moyers added a double 8 milking parlor.

Holly is the eldest of four children. She has a sister Rosie, 14; a brother Clayton, 8; and twin 7-year-old sisters, Winonna and Tabitha.

Holly attends Tulpenhocken High School, where she is a member of FFA. She also participates in show choir, chorus, band, and has acted in several school musicals and plays.

Holly is secretary of the 4-H Club, which has about 60 members. She is also the Berks County Dairy Ambassador and has participated in 4-H capitol, state, and national Congress.

Not surprisingly, Holly collects cow items.

"I'm also a big Tigger fan," she said of Disney's Winnie the Pooh series.

After high school, Holly plans to attend Penn State to study dairy animal science and dairy nutrition and return to work on the family farm.

In the meanwhile, Holly can again be seen clipping cows during this fair season. She shows at Kutztown, Schuylkill, 4-H Roundup, and the Southeast Championship Show. She hopes to do well enough to participate in states and All-American competition.

"And I'm trying to talk my parents into letting me show at the Pennsylvania Farm Show," Holly said.

All this traveling from show to show means more time away from the farm. So the answer needs to be balanced with the opportunity for the whole family to go on the grand-prize trip to Barbados.

"We will need to hire someone who knows the herd to do the milking," Holly said.

People often ask if Holly's brush with fame entices her to pursue a career in entertainment.

"No," she answers quickly. "I don't like to be in front of a camera."

Her favorite spot is with her best friends, the cows at Peek-A-View Holsteins.

Booklet Recaps Bread Memories, Traditions

PARKER, Colo. — Joan Lunden, Elvis Grbac, Angela Lansbury and 18 winners from across the nation have all contributed stories, drawings or recipes for a booklet to benefit the Spina Bifida Association of America. This booklet, which illustrates the importance of bread's influence on our warm memories and family traditions, features top entries selected from the Wheat Foods Council (WFC) and American Bakers Association's (ABA) "Bread: Memories and Traditions of a Lifetime" contest. Proceeds from booklet sales will be donated to Spina Bifida Association of America, which educates the public on neural tube birth defects and raises money for research.

"We received nearly 1,000 contest entries, which made the selection of the top entries a challenging task," said Mindy Hermann, R.D., a judge for the "Stories of a Lifetime" category. "The stories amazed me. It was incredible to read how bread, which is both a comfort food and a nutritious staple in American culture, could create such vivid memories and recollections."

The contest consisted of three categories: "Favorite Recipes" for unpublished bread-based recipes; "Stories of a Lifetime" for the best stories that recall fun times with family and friends; and "Bread Drawings," in which children entered drawings of bread or rolls as a part of their favorite meals.

All winning entries, as well as celebrity contributions and honorable mention entries, have been compiled into a booklet that is available to the public for $5.

To order the booklet and help the Spina Bifida Association of America, send your name, address, telephone number and a check or money order for $5 (includes postage and handling) payable to WFC Memories of a Lifetime. Mail the check and your contact information to WFC Memories of a Lifetime/ AJM, 2405 Grand Blvd., #700, Kansas City, MO 64108.

½ cup melted butter
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup flour

ANSWER — Phyllis Stauffer, Carlisle, wanted a recipe for a clear, reddish orange sweet and sour sauce that tastes like that served at Chinese restaurants. Lee Lverty, Dover, N.J., suggests Phyllis buy the sweet and sour sauce called Dai-Dee Duck Sauce or Gold's Soo Moy Jung Oriental Style Duck Sauce in the Chinese section of supermarkets. Making it is time consuming. The purchased sauce also makes a wonderful base for barbecue sauce on chicken and ribs.

Lancaster Farm Women Society 18

Lancaster Farm Women Society 18 met at the home of Martha Stoner, president, on Aug. 21. Dessert was enjoyed before the meeting. Evelyn Brubaker led devotions. Roll call required each of the 17 members present to tell and show a favorite basket. A surprising number of baskets of all sizes from about one-inch to one that was 3-foot high. Construction was as varied as materials used. Some were in the family for generations; all were cherished possessions.

After business and announcements, members were reminded of the September buffet to be held at Yoder's Restaurant. Husbands and guests are welcome.

Berks Society 6

Berks County Society of Farm Women #6 held its June meeting at the home of Linda Youse. Five members were present. Dairy Ambassador Vicky Kieffer was the speaker. Also present was Little Dairy Princess Ashley Mohn.

Ten members were present at the July 20th meeting held at the home of Mary Jane Hetrick. Member Beth Glick demonstrated flower arranging.

The goup will go to Sunny Crest for lunch in Aug. Dorothy Wagner will hold a family picnic in August at Mary Jane Hetrick's. Members should bring a small gift to play "Now you have it, now you don't."

A monetary donation was collected to give to the state project Habitat for Humanity. The county convention will be Oct. 2.

Kids See Connection Between Farm And Food

JINNY WILT
Adams Co. Correspondent

YORK SPRINGS — That bee in their urban backyard might seem like a nuisance, and the slow-paced tractor on the road ahead might be annoying, but 60 Adams County youngsters learned that these are all part of what brings food to their dinner table.

Takng part in the Adams County Agricultural Science Day, Camp sponsored Aug. 10-11 by the Penn State Extension Office, the youngsters arrived at Bermudian Springs Middle School, which opened its doors for the program.

From the school on the first day the youngsters were bused in two groups to a tour of Hollabaugh Fruit Farm where they rode in a large wagon pulled by a tractor through the orchards.

Hollabaughs, in business, since 1955, showed off some of its 500 acres of apple, peach, pear and plum orchards and a few of its 11 irrigation ponds.

Extension office staffer Jeannie Plotica explained, as she bounced along the trail through the orchards, that "the ag program, when advertised filled up quickly. We limited it to 60 and of those registering only 12 are already in 4-H," she said.

"This is an effort to expose farming to those who haven't experienced it," she continued.

Joined by John Wardle, agricultural teacher at Bermudian Springs, the two spoke of the importance of letting youngsters see where their food comes from. Plotica noted that many people are moving into Adams County from urban areas and complaining about the smells and activities of the farming community. "They don't understand that this is a rural community and this is all part of it," she said.

"It is our hope that these youngsters as they grow up might remember when they see that bee in their backyard that it is necessary for pollination, and that the farmer needs to move from field to field, and that they might have more respect for farming," Plotica said.

Wardle said earlier in the day that the group toured Kimes Cider Mill, just up the road from Hollabaughs on Route 34, and were able to see peaches go from fresh raw fruit to a processed product.

"It's important for them to make the connection between the farm and their food," he said.

After lunch at Oak Side Park, the youngsters traveled back to Bermudian Springs where they prepared peaches to make jam and learned about nutrition labels and what they mean. They prepared their own nutrition labels for their jam.

On Aug. 11, the youngsters once again boarded their buses, this time to tour Buttercup Dairy Farm near East Berlin where they took a hayride and fed calves before visiting the Buttercup Market with its abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables.

After lunch they went onto Ke-Holtz Dairy located along Route 234 west of East Berlin where they observed a 24-hour dairy in action. After this tour the youth returned to Bermudian Springs where they made ice cream. This treat was topped with peaches and served to the youngsters and parents, Plotica said.

She explained that the ag science program took the place this year of the farm safety camp.

WITH TWIG WALKINGSTICK
Why do ducklings follow their mother?
The mother duck doesn't have to order her ducklings to follow her in a row Instead, she gets a little help from nature
Unlike songbirds that are helpless and completely dependent on their parents for food and shelter, ducks, geese and other waterfowl chicks are fairly developed when they hatch Most can walk within a few hours And, the curious duckling might wander off So, the ducklings "imprint" on their mom
Imprint is a term used by biologists and other scientists It means that very young animals learn by fixing all of their attention on the first thing they see, touch or feel after they hatch In mallard ducklings and domestic chicks, imprinting must take place within the first few hours of life
This unique way of learning keeps the ducklings next to their mother, where she can keep a protective eye on them Imprinting also helps ducklings recognize their own mother from other adults of the same species, and it helps the ducklings learn who to socialize with and what characteristics to seek out in future mates That means a mallard will only look to mate with another mallard, which in turn keeps the species alive
A duckling might imprint on another species — even you — in cartoons and movies That really can happen in a laboratory setting But in the wild, misimprinting is pretty rare Momma duck makes sure she's there to see her ducklings hatch!

Caution On Herbal Usage

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If you are thinking about taking botanicals—or herbal supplements—to help alleviate a medical problem or to improve your health, proceed with caution, says a registered dietitian in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"You should treat botanicals as you would a drug," says Mary Alice Gettings, Penn State Cooperative Extension nutrition and health agent based in Beaver County. "Because 'herbals' can behave like drugs in your body, they may cause harmful interactions with other medications if they're not used properly."

For example, one popular herbal supplement is ginkgo biloba, which some people believe can enhance memory and improve circulation. It also has been studied for its possible positive effects on Alzheimer's disease. "But ginkgo biloba thins blood," says Gettings. "If you're already taking vitamin E, Coumadin (warfarin), aspirin or other blood thinners, ginkgo biloba could cause hemorrhaging.

"St. Johns Wort has received attention for its reputed ability to relieve depression," she adds. "But if you're taking an antidepressant medication, you may have to reduce the dosage of the drug as you increase the dosage of the herb."

Gettings advises working with your health care provider to be sure that what you're taking is safe. "Inform your doctor, nurse, dietitian or other health care professional about every herbal supplement, vitamin and medication you're taking so he or she can help you to avoid harmful interactions or overdoses."

Although botanicals often act like drugs, they are regulated as dietary supplements, not as drugs. Gettings says that means herbals usually have not been fully tested to prove their effectiveness.

"Pharmaceutical companies on average spend about $231 million on research to get FDA approval for a drug, but drugs can be patented to protect that investment," she says. "Botanicals are not patentable, so manufacturers prefer not to spend that kind of money to prove health claims or safety. The FDA only investigates the safety of an herb if there have been complaints."

If you're going to use botanicals, Gettings recommends first doing your homework. "You should research the herb and learn its possible effects, active ingredient, potency and recommended dosage." She says such information is available from health care practitioners, reputable health-related Web sites and books. "Useful books on herbals are 'The Honest Herbal' and 'Herbs of Choice' by V.E. Tyler, and 'Physicians Desk Reference for Herbal Medicines'," Gettings says.

When purchasing a botanical, check the label for a statement of standardization.

There is some proselytizing going on at Calvary Bible Church and it isn't all church related. That seems to be the spot where a lot of kids have been corralled into sheep showing. Pictured are some of the exhibitors. From left are Larry and Tammy Musser with children Christine, 11; Rachel, 10; Matthew, 8; and Sarah. Judy Zurin and children Sarah, 18; Todd, 14; and Adam, 12. Sheep Exhibitors Increase Through Proselytization

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — When Sarah Zurin bought her first market lamb, her cousin laughed at her.

Sheep, Kathy Musser believed, were dirty and smelly.

Soon Kathy was intrigued as she listened to Sarah and Radell Peters talk about the antics of their pet lambs. Every Sunday morning the two had some new adventure about sheep that they talked and laughed about.

"I'm going to show sheep, too," Kathy told Sarah one Sunday.

Sarah laughed. "Not you—you could never do it."

"She was just too neat, too particular," Sarah said of her reason for voicing that opinion about eight years ago.

"I was a real clean freak," Kathy conceded. "But after Sarah laughed at me, I became really determined to show her that I could do it."

And Kathy did.

"She beat me in novice, showmanship, and leadline," Sarah said of the friendly but intense competition that was played out in the show ring during recent years.

The camaraderie among Sarah, Kathy, and Radell who attended the same church soon attracted more people to join their ranks. Now additional family members, cousins, and friends of this core group show sheep. Most live in the Elizabethtown—Mt. Joy area, so they all compete at the Elizabethtown Fair. At last week's fair, more than 200 exhibitors entered the competition, up from the show's original seven when the competition first began. Many of the participants are the direct result of Sarah's, Kathy's, and Radell's prostelization.

"Our youth group is really a 'tight' bunch of kids. If they don't show (sheep), they always ask us about it," Radell said. "Some of the others would like to show but they don't have a place to raise sheep."

Radell, his parents, Ray and Becky, and older brother are considered the first ones to become interested in sheep. Ray is a 4-H Woolies Club leader. Radell raises about 20 head of Dorsets, crossbreds, and a few Jacob sheep.

He said, "It's fun competing. We encourage each other. You know if you lose one time, you may win the next time."

Sarah is now 18 and a freshman at Grace College in Indiana, where she is studying to become a missionary. Sarah recalls that as an eight-year-old she was totally overwhelmed but excited by all the things that needed to be done to show sheep.

Her first lamb named Max became so tame that he didn't require a halter, but simply followed Sarah around. When Max was ready to show, he needed his wool clipped.

"I hated the way he looked after we took his wool off," Sarah said.

Sarah said that lead line competition is always a highlight for her. She had a few impressive wins, but she said, "Although I didn't alway place very well, the fun of doing it made up for it."

Sheep competition was limited for Sarah this year. She headed off for college in the midst of Elizabethtown Fair. As last year's Manheim Community Farm Show Queen, Sarah will return to the Manheim Far Show in October to crown the new fair queen.

Over the years, Sarah and her brothers Todd, 14, and Adam, 12, have shown sheep, Holstein feeder steers, and pigs. An older brother Ben does not show. They live on a 30-acre farm in Mt. Joy with their parents Gary and Judy Zurin. Judy is a dairy beef leader and helps at the Elizabethtown Fair. Gary is a sheep leader.

Although Sarah can no longer participate in sheep competition, she eagerly awaits news via her brother who continue to show. Todd just returned from a mission's trip to Ecuador. He said, "The sheep looked really bad there, but you can buy lots of wool clothing really cheap."

Adam likes showmanship best. Although he is only 11 years old, Adam has taken first place in 11 competitions so far.

With the financial earnings from some of her sheep placings, Kathy, 18, will head off to Word of Life on Sept. 18. Kathy's favorite activity is lead line, in which the exhibitor models a wool outfit and is judged for poise, control, and the lamb's cleanliness. Kathy has won numerous lead line competitions throughout the county and at Keystone International Livestock Exhibition.

Kathy and her brothers Michael, 16; Richard, 13; and Doug, 8; have 10 head that they raise on their parents' Ken and Linda's farm in Mt. Joy. In his first year of showing, Doug's lamb was selected as the reserve grand champion market lamb at the E-town Fair.

State FFA Awards To Tioga County

The Pennsylvania Association of FFA recently recognized two individuals and one business for their generous and continued support of the FFA and its members. The presentations were made during the 70th Annual Summer Convention of the Pennsylvania FFA Association. The convention was held in the Ag Arena on the University Park Campus of the Pennsylvania State University.

The state FFA officers presented the Honorary State FFA Degree to Wayne Crawford and Paul Shaffer. Crawford, guidance counselor at Cowanesque Valley High School, has been instrumental in helping to guide students into the agricultural education program and encouraging students to become active FFA members. Crawford has worked with the agriculture teachers in revising the curriculum and getting certain courses to qualify for science credit. He has accompanied members to both the fall leadership and the state legislative leadership conferences, helped to set up and enroll FFA members in the Dale Carnegie course, and has taken students to regional career events.

Paul Shaffer, of the Natural Resources Conservation Service in Wellsboro, has been of great help to all agricultural education departments in the county. Shaffer has always made himself available to locate the best sites and then to officiate over their evaluation for the annual Tioga County FFA land use management contest. Special programs have been conducted at the various schools under his guidance and direction. Chapter teams have received assistance in their preparation for both state and national land use management competition. In addition, Shaffer has assisted in the county Envirothon and conservation field days, where many FFA members or future FFA members are involved.

The Middlebury Co-op was presented with a state Citation Award for its support of the FFA chapters and members of Tioga and Potter counties. Donald Gilman, president and general manager and Dennis Graves, vice president of the dairy co-op were present for the award. The co-op is always on the seats for the junior livestock and milk sales at both Potter and Tioga county fairs. When any chapters or chapter members are involved in special trips or awards, the co-op has been there to lend financial support when needed. The recipients of these special state awards were recommended to the state association by the Cowanesque, Liberty, and Wellsboro FFA chapters.

Believe it or not, a month later, our life is getting back to normal. My husband apparently has recovered rather rapidly from his open heart surgery. For one thing, he felt that he had to.

You see, the large and almost 80-year-old apple tree in our front yard split under the load of fruit. One morning a third of the tree was laying on the lawn. It had eight to ten bushel of apples and that was too many.

Guess who has made almost 50 quarts of applesauce. We'll have a freezer shelf full for winter use. And, we found a lot of friends with whom we could share the apples. Of course, my husband was out with our son as the tree was sawed into pieces and the smaller branches put through the chipper.

Then a very large ash tree came crashing down on a summer cottage and again he was right there with the clean-up crew. This time two of our sons pitched in to help. Our son from Atlanta spent four days helping us catch up with yard mowing and rototiller work. Our strawberry patch certainly looks rough from the summer drought.

It was a joy to have Jeffrey visit us as we seem to have one small disaster after another. The drain in the basement became clogged and he helped to open it. He even installed a full length mirror for me as he has promised a while ago. When going away, I always dress in a hurry and now maybe a mirror will keep me from some embarrassing moments that I have had in the past.

Sometimes older folks need a younger person in their lives for a few days.

New John Deere 5105 and 5205 Advantage Series Tractors

Legendary quality at a great price

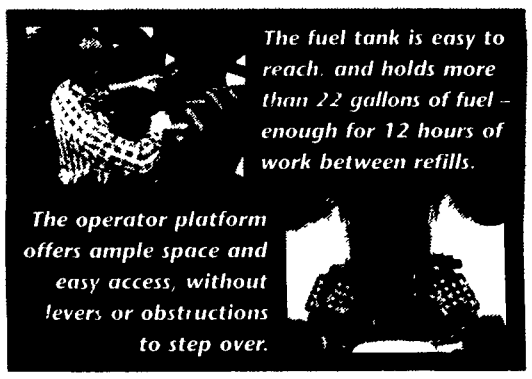
Now it's easier than ever to get John Deere quality. Introducing two new tractors that give you the productivity you need, at the economy-class price you want.

Start with power. New 5105 and 5205 Advantage Series Tractors offer 2.9 L, 3-cylinder John Deere diesel engines. They deliver a torque reserve that keeps pulling when other brands bog down. And count on fully rated PTO power when operating implements at the proper 540-rpm speed. You'll notice a big difference in tough mowing and baling. Plus, low fuel consumption of the 5105 and 5205 adds to their economy.

Compare transmissions. The new John Deere SyncReverser™ transmission features eight forward and four reverse speeds. A synchronized shuttle-shift means you don't have to come to a complete stop when changing directions. That's one of the reasons these tractors are perfect for loader work.

Superior hydraulics – 17.4 gpm – give you fast lifting cycles. Add a John Deere 521 Loader, and you'll blow through all kinds of chores. And both tractor models are available in 2WD and optional MFWD.

To learn more about the 40-hp 5105 and 48-hp 5205 Advantage Series Tractors, stop by your John Deere dealer today.



The fuel tank is easy to reach, and holds more than 22 gallons of fuel – enough for 12 hours of work between refills.
The operator platform offers ample space and easy access, without levers or obstructions to step over.

Crouse To Serve RULE

BY JINNY WILT
Adams County
Correspondent

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Adams County resident Richard Crouse finds his election to the Pennsylvania Rural Leadership (RULE) Program's Advisory Board "an honor and a privilege."

Crouse, employed by the USDA/Farm Service Agency as an agricultural loan officer in Lancaster County, was elected to a one-year term beginning July 1 as vice-president of the board.

The RULE program is designed to develop community leaders who have the skills and resources necessary to meet the challenges of a changing community. The program runs over the course of two years.

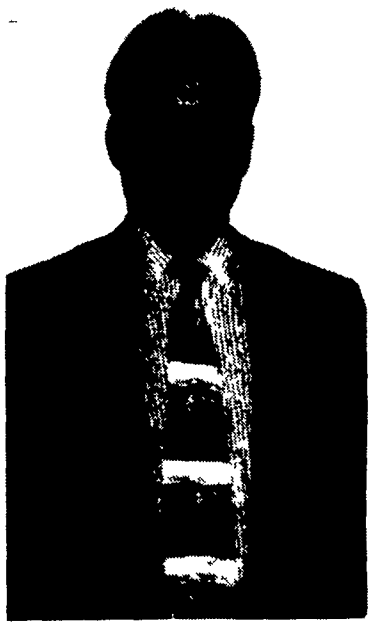
The first year focuses on resolving local, regional and state issues. Participants attend four three-day weekend institutes in December, January and February in rural Pennsylvania.

In March, participants attend an urban/rural institute in either Philadelphia or Pittsburgh and in April there is a four-day legislative session in Harrisburg.

The second year the program focuses on national and international topics. Three study institutes are scheduled for rural Pennsylvania. A five-day institute is conducted in Washington in April and commencement exercises are in May of the second year.

A new class will begin this fall. Individuals interested in learning more about the RULE program should call (814) 863-4679.

Krouse said, "It is an honor and privilege to be elected to this position by fellow RULE leaders across Pennsylvania. I look at it as another challenging opportunity to utilize my leadership and group process skills learned through the RULE program. I am very excited about being a part of the team and look forward to taking my place on the board."



Richard Crouse

Active in the Adams County area, Krouse serves as treasurer on the Cooperative Extension Service Board of Adams County, Adams County Land Conservancy Board, secretary on the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Association Capital Region Board, Upper Adams Lions board of directors, member of Adams County Farm Bureau and Fruit Growers Association, Pennsylvania Banker's Planning Board, Biglerville Historical Society, instructor for Northeast Lenders School at Cornell University, and certified instructor in Hunter Safety Education.

He serves on the St. Francis Xavier Parish Council in Gettysburg and has been a graduate assistant the past four years for the Dale Carnegie Course in Hanover. He formerly served on the Upper Adams Jaycees Board, Oakside Community Park Board, and the National Apple Harvest Board.

"We are so fortunate to have a leader of Richard Crouse's caliber on the Advisory Board," said J. D. Dunbar, RULE CEO. "Richard humanizes the concept of rural leadership through his passionate commitment."

Farm Groups Unite On Behalf Of Agriculture

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) – The three major state farm organizations gathered during Ag Progress Days to call for unified action that would rebuild a deteriorating farm economy across the nation.

The presidents of the State Grange, Farmers Union and Farm Bureau, along with farmers, legislators and other interested parties, conducted a press conference to rally support for agriculture and rural America and bring and end to the farm crisis.

State Master Bill Steel spoke about the Northeast Dairy Compact and the concentration of agriculture in large meat and grain companies. Also participating in the event were a number of state and elected officials who are also concerned about the issue.

U.s. Congressman Ron Klink, D-Jeannette, said not only must farmers be united, but that the federal government must also come together – especially during these difficult times compounded by the drought of 1999.

"This is a natural disaster of a huge magnitude," Klink said. "We need a bipartisan effort in Washington to bring about relief for farmers."

Klink said there is a law that authorizes the President of the United States to provide grants to those affected by natural disasters.

He cited such examples as tornadoes and hurricanes and said the drought has caused its own brand of devastation across Pennsylvania and other northeastern states.

State Senators Michael O'Pake, D-Reading, and Sara Steelman, D-Indiana, and Rep. Sheila Miller, R-Reading, all spoke and assured the groups that a package of bills are expected to be introduced this fall that will seek financial relief caused by the drought.

In fact, in a press release dated Aug. 23 (one week after Ag Progress Days), Miller announced that a bill called the "Agriculture Disaster Prevention Act" will be introduced to help protect Pennsylvania's agriculture community from future natural disasters.

The bill calls for the state Department of Agriculture to pick up 50 percent of the cost of federal crop insurance for commonwealth farmers.

"Disasters like this year's drought threaten our food supply, as well as the stability of the agricultural industry," Miller said. "Crop insurance ensures that our farmers will receive at least some level of return if their crops are wiped out by events such as droughts or floods."

At the press conference, O'Pake said Harrisburg legislators have a responsibility to protect the state's number one industry, agriculture.

"Agriculture is difficult enough in good weather, but is downright near impossible with the kind of summer and winters we have been experiencing the past couple of years."

O'Pake said funds were distributed after the Agnes Flood, and added that there is more than $1 billion in the federal government's Rainy Day Fund.

State Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes Jr. said he appreciates the efforts of the farm groups to "take care of their members during these troubling times."

Hayes placed estimates on damage from the drought at least $500 million across the state.

"Agriculture is taken for granted, but agriculture subsidies our way of life here in Pennsylvania," Hayes said. "We must care for and nurture it."

Recovering from the financial hardships caused by the drought is one of five points that the farm groups seek to have addressed.

The five points are:

- Immediate passage of adequate emergency funding to address the short-term needs in rural America, and especially those caused by severe drought in Pennsylvania.
- Long-term changes to the structure of the nation's farm programs to reinforce the safety net for crop, livestock and dairy producers to keep family farms thriving into the next century.
- Stepped-up investigations of anti-competitive practices in agricultural markets.
- Improvements to the nation's crop insurance program to make coverage more affordable and to provide protection to farmers during times of reduced production and low prices.
- Sensible trade policies and trade agreements that level the playing field for U.S. producers.

Drought Won't Dry Up Ohio Grain Income Says Ag Economist

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Lower crop yields due to drought, combined with dipping crop prices, won't necessarily equal a disastrous gross income for Ohio's grain farmers, said an Ohio State University agricultural economist.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that Ohio's corn yield will be 131 bushels per acre, or 10 bushels less than last year's yield of 141 bushels per acre. The USDA also estimates Ohio's soybean yield will be 42 bushels per acre, or two bushels per acre less than last year's yield of 44 bushels per acre.

However, Carl Zulauf said the government offers a safety net in the form of a marketing loan program, which potentially offers rates for corn and soybeans above the market prices for those commodities. For the average Ohio farmer, gross income from corn and soybeans should decline no more than 5 percent from last year's level, Zulauf said.

Current quotes for corn prices at harvest are around $1.94 per bushel, compared with a $1.90-per-bushel loan rate. Current quotes for soybean prices at harvest are $4.21 per bushel compared to a $5.38-per-bushel government loan rate.

"For soybeans, the price at harvest will not matter because it is below the loan rate," Zulauf said. "Among those in the farm community, there is an incredible fixation on prices, but it flat-out doesn't matter to soybean producers right now."

Based on an expected 131-bushel-per-acre corn crop and the current harvest quote of $1.94 per bushel, farmers can make a gross income of $254 per acre. That compares to last year's per-acre gross income of $268, using 1998 yield and loan rate data. The difference between the two income figures is about 5 percent.

Based on a 42-bushel-per-acre average Ohio soybean yield and the $5.38-per-bushel loan rate, farmers can make $226 per acre, compared to last year's gross income of $238 using 1998 yield and loan rate data.

Zulauf emphasized the figures are averages, and the typical Ohio farmer's net income will depend on yields for a particular farm and costs of production, which will individually vary higher or lower than average.

Although crops have sustained drought damage in some parts of the state, other areas are reporting relatively good yields for corn and soybeans, said Zulauf. Consequently, the state's average yields for both crops are expected to be about equal to the five-year average, he said. Zulauf calculates the five-year average by averaging all but the highest and lowest annual yields for the past five years.

"You cannot generalize from the local condition to the aggregate one," Zulauf said. "What you've got in this state is an extreme range of conditions. There's no question in my mind that farmers are hurting. But you've also got large portions of the state with good yields. There is this fixation with disaster, but we should not forget the bigger picture."

However, another Ohio State agricultural economist, Allan Lines, said USDA's yield estimates are too high for Ohio corn and soybeans.

"I have driven all over the state, and what I've seen isn't an average crop, and that's what their (USDA) report is saying. USDA is a little on the high side," Lines said.

"As I have driven around the state, I would have pegged the Ohio corn yield at 125 bushels per acre. That's just eyeballing the crop from the road. The USDA probably knows more than I do because they do a statistical analysis rather than a windshield survey. As for soybeans, I would say we have a 40-bushel-per-acre yield."

Zulauf said the commodity markets aren't buying a crop disaster scenario, because the drought-stressed Eastern Corn Belt and Eastern United States are small players in U.S. production. Some states in the Western Corn Belt are expected to have record or near-record yields, he said.

"I don't want to underestimate the difficulty for the Eastern Corn Belt, but in terms of national production, it doesn't matter," Zulauf said. "What does matter for setting prices is what goes on in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Nebraska."

However, Lines also thinks USDA's national yield projections are on the high side, because the estimated national corn yield of 134.7 bushels per acre and the estimated national soybean yield of 39.2 bushels per acre are close to records set in 1994.

"I guess even the national yields are tilted on the optimistic side," Lines said. "I find it difficult to believe we're so close to the records given the (drought) growing conditions in the southern Eastern Corn Belt."

Zulauf left open the possibility that national yields could be hurt if weather turns for the worse in the Western Corn Belt. Nevertheless, this is not a year for farmers to gamble on prices, unless one has a proven track record in "beating the market," he said.

"There's a time for risk-taking in marketing a crop, and a time not to take risks," Zulauf said. "I would say this is not a time for risk-taking. Most farmers in this state can live with getting $5.38 per bushel for soybeans. They're not going to make a lot of money, but they're not in danger of bankrupting the farm either.

THESE QUALITY GRAIN CARTS MUST GO!

Choose the Grain Cart of your Size!
Sizes 450, 530, 640 Bushel Carts Ready to Haul

You're probably farming more acres today than your father did, and it's likely your operation will continue to grow. There are still only 24 hours in a day, though, which means you need to be as efficient as possible at harvest.

One big advantage you can have on your side is a patented Corner Auger™ Grain Cart from Unverferth Manufacturing Company, the grain transportation specialists. Unverferth grain carts are designed to let you unload your combine on-the-go and increase your harvest efficiency by up to 30 percent! The cart then lets you unload into a truck or wagon at up to 400 bushels per minute while your combine keeps working.

Is your TMR Mixer limiting your ability to reduce feed costs?

The NDE Vertical Mixer cuts and blends whatever you may have available: round bale silage, dry hay bales of any size, cotton seed, distillers grain, cannery by-products, etc. A TRUE TMR not only gives your cows exactly what they need to reach top production, but also allows you to purchase feed stuffs economically, and mix them into a palatable, easily digestible, readily eaten feed.

COMMANDER SYSTEM

LAND COMMANDER II

CONTROLS COMPACTION, ROUGH FIELDS, SOIL EROSION & RESIDUE MANAGEMENT PROBLEMS

Adjustable front disc gangs cut the residue. Auto-reset shanks penetrate the soil 8" to 20" to break up compaction. The rear discs break clods, incorporate residue and level fields. To leave more surface residue and control erosion, change the disk angle or raise the gang.

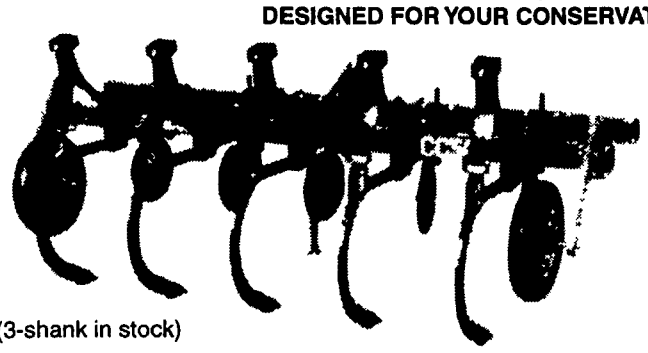
COMPACTION COMMANDER

NO-TILL RIPPER / DEEP RIPPER

DESIGNED FOR YOUR CONSERVATION NEEDS



(3-shank in stock)

Brillion introduces their new Compaction Commander...designed to break up hardpan and compaction as deep as 20". The standard V-shaped alloy point and wear strip leaves residue on the surface with minimal soil disturbance.

Auto-reset shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage. Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil. 39" of underframe clearance assures trouble free operation even in heavy reside.

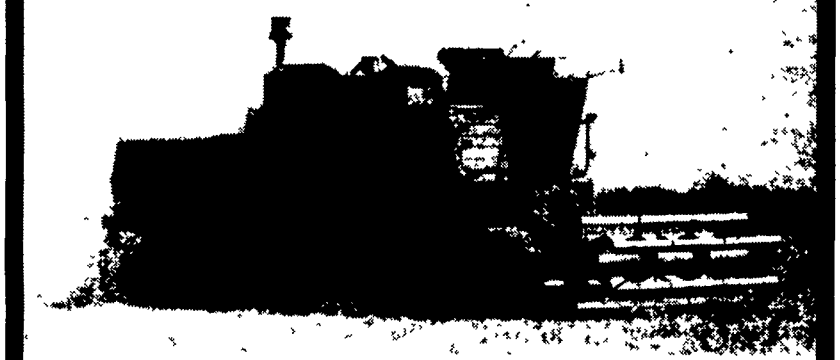
BECAUSE YOUR DAY DOESN'T START AT 9:00 AM...



OURS DOESN'T EITHER

When you work the land, you don't have the luxury of working 9 to 5. You need to be available all day, every day...and if your equipment breaks down, you need it fixed now, not tommorrow at 3:00.

Deer Creek understands the way you work. That's why we're here when you need us with parts and service 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Where you buy a product is often as important as what you buy!

Put us to the test! Service when you need it.

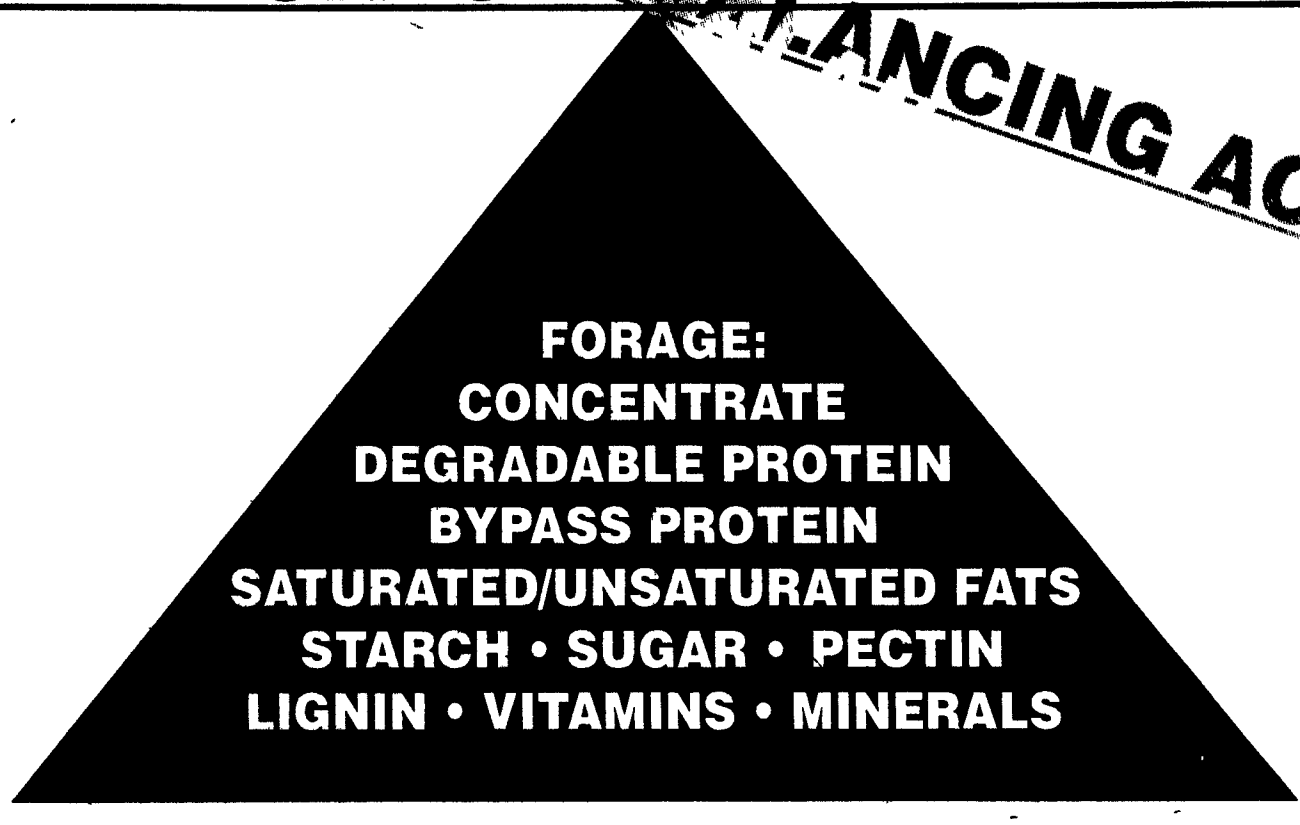
NUTRITION IS A BALANCING ACT!

NUTRITION IS A BALANCING ACT!



The list seems endless, and this year's forages don't make it any easier. That's why we at Consolidated Nutrition have been hard at work developing the new UltraBALANCE Dairy Feeds line.

Forages are the starting point for every ration and they are very complex things. How fast and efficiently does the cow digest them and utilize their nutrients? What kind of protein do they have? Is it highly soluble or slower degrading? What is the amino acid profile? What kind of concentrate supplementation is best suited to match up with the forage base?

These are the questions we at Consolidated Nutrition spend an awful lot of time, research and effort trying to answer. With the industry's largest herd of rumen cannulated cows, we are hard at work running "in rumen" degradation, digestion, and absorption rates trials. This enables us to better evaluate this year's forages and determine the best and most efficient ways to make the most out of them.

THIS YEAR'S FORAGES How do you stretch them, how do you get the most out of them ?

You have Questions And We Have Answers.

Keeping Pigs Cool Can Boost Productivity

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — High temperatures take their toll on the performance of hogs and sows and can reduce boar fertility. Keeping your pigs cool in hot weather can boost productivity and save you money, said a swine expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Pigs in a typical confinement building are at your mercy to stay comfortable," said Kenneth Kephart, associate professor of animal science. "When the temperature is too high, a pig usually finds a wet spot in the pen. If there is none, the best it can do is lie on its side and pant."

When pigs experience heat stress, they eat less and their growth slows. Sows that are too hot have trouble conceiving, and heat hampers sperm development and fertility in boars. "When any of these things happen, it costs you money," Kephars said. "The bottom line is we need to do whatever we can to keep pigs comfortable."

Getting hogs wet is the most effective way to cool them. "Spray nozzles are good for finishing houses or breeding areas because they make the animal wet and cool without adding significant moisture to the air," Kephart said.

"Choose a nozzle size and regulate the spraying time so that each hog receives at least .02 gallons per hour. For example, if you have 25 hogs per pen and one nozzle that puts out three gallons per hour, the nozzle should run about two minutes out of 10."

"The Signature of Success" To Mark National FFA Convention

INDIANAPOLIS Ind. — "FFA – The Signature of Success" is the theme for the 72nd National FFA Convention, symbolizing the agricultural education organization's mission to prepare students for success throughout their lives.

More than 49,000 FFA members, advisers, supporters, and guests are expected to attend the convention Oct. 27-30 at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center in Louisville, Ky.

"The National FFA Convention is a perfect forum to see the energy, motivation, and talent that will unite us with our ever-changing world," said Larry D. Case, national FFA adviser. "Students from across the country celebrate each other's successes, share their pride in American agriculture and apply what they've learned about leadership, personal growth and career success. Watching students show such pride and energy is the best guarantee we have for the future of our nation."

The national convention, the culmination of a year's activities for FFA members, is an opportunity for recognition, business, elections, and celebration. Delegates from each state will discuss topics affecting the national organization and elect a new team of national officers. Exceptional members and supporters will receive awards for their achievement and commitment to the FFA. Students will compete for national titles in several events, including speaking and parliamentary procedure competitions.

Opportunities for personal growth and leadership development continue with presentations by educational and motivational speakers including Danny Glover, nationally acclaimed actor; Danny Roever, motivational speaker; Jamie Clark, expeditionist; and Emory Austin, motivational speaker.

Future education and career are also key components of the convention. Students will have the opportunity to meet business and industry supporters of the FFA, represented through the 1999 National FFA Foundation Sponsor's Board chaired by William Boehm, vice president – logistics, of Kroger Company. Hundreds of exhibitors will provide information about education and career possibilities at the concurrent National FFA Alumni Convention and the National Agricultural Career Show.

The national FFA officers, a team of six student leaders, help plan the convention activities and represent FFA on a national level. The officers kick off the convention the afternoon and evening of Oct. 27 with the opening "Reflections" sessions, a series of dramatic and motivational presentations that generate excitement and set the theme for the convention. The 1998-99 National FFA Officers are Lisa Ahrens, national president from Osage, Iowa; Abby Dougherty, national secretary from Greenwood, Ind. Andy Armbruster, central region vice president from Kiowa, Kan.; Emily Buxton, eastern region vice president from Warsaw, Ohio; Jose Santiago, southern region vice president from Camuy, Puerto Rico; and James Garner, western region vice president from Hanford, Calif.

Grain Cart: Easy Filling, Less Spilling

SHELL ROCK, Iowa — Unverferth introduces the Brent Avalanche™ double-auger grain cart. The Avalanche grain cart features a low-profile design for easier loading and an exclusive, height-adjustable unloading auger for easier unloading into grain wagons and trucks, minimizing grain spillage.

The Avalanche dual augers unload grain at more than 600 bushels per minute, the industry's fastest. The key to this remarkable unloading speed is the high-output 220 h.p. gearbox powering the 18-inch horizontal auger, with thick-edge fighting and the massive 20-inch vertical unloading auger. The innovative, extra-long vertical unloading auger pivots at the base to provide unloading height adjustabiity from 15 feet 6 inches to 10 feet 6 inches (depending on model and undercarriage option) for optimum unloading precision. Pivoting the auger also extends the reach, minimizing the need to reposition cart to precisely unload into the center of the vehicle.

The Avalanche grain cart is available in models 1084 and 884 with capabilities of more than 1,000 bushels and 850 bushels, respectively. Units are available with choice of wheels and high-flotation tires, tracks, or an innovative walking-tandem dual wheel chassis for model 1084. The tracked undercarriage is factory-tested for true-tracking performance and features a 36-inch wide by 120-inch long belt for optimum maneuverability and minimal berming. The innovative walking-tandem, dual wheel undercarriage, with new wheels and 18.4 x 42 tires, operates independently from front to rear to "walk over" obstacles and easily trail through the field. The dual wheel assembly conveniently swings out for tire changing case.

Company Acquires Central Fabricators Inc., Alitec Corp.

ROCKFORD, Ill. — To broaden its offering to the construction equipment industry, Woods Equipment Company has acquired Central Fabricators, Inc. and Alitec Corporation in two separate transactions.

Central Fabricators, based in Schofield, Wis., manufactures a line of pin-on excavator buckets and Alitec, based in Brownsburg, Ind., manufactures a line of patented hydraulic powered attachments for the skid-steer market.

"These acquisitions allow us to offer dealers and customers a broader range of products and moves us closer to our goal of providing a complete line of attachments for the construction industry," said Steve Starrett, General Manager, construction business for Woods.

"Along with the expanded product line," said Starrett, "the new organization benefits from Central Fabricator's expertise in excavator attachments and strength in the Midwest construction market, as well as from Alitec's leadership in innovative skid steer products." Central Fabricator's complete line of excavator buckets will extend Woods' current offering of Gannon, BMP, and Wain Roy Brand attachments and coupler systems. Alitec's line of skid steer attachments, including cold planners, vibratory rollers, augers, stump grinders, rock wheels, and tillers, complements Woods more traditional offering to the growing skid steer market.

At the same time, Woods announced the acquisition of Tru-Part Manufacturing, known in the marketplace as Tisco. Based in St. Paul, Minn., Tisco serves the agricultural market as a leading independent distributor of replacement parts.

Silage Spreaders with a Heritage of Quality

Lancaster Level-Flo has been the leader in non-motorized silage spreaders for more than 25 years. Each spreader is specifically designed to meet the needs of the individual operator.

Choose the spreader that best matches the equipment you use to fill your silo.

The Model 1030 Multi-Flo® is our standard silage spreader. With a 9" gooseneck, it is designed for average capacity blowers and silo sizes.

The Model 1200 Multi-Flo® has a 12" wide gooseneck. Its larger size all but eliminates plugging problems, even when you blow in haylage. It is especially helpful in larger silos.

The BlueMax® is built for those who push high-capacity silo filling equipment to the limit. All parts of the BlueMax® subject to wear are made 25% heavier - and the stainless steel plate is twice as heavy. For strength, there are reinforcements all around. Even our well-known non-binding hinge is heavier.

For more information or the location of the Lancaster dealer nearest you, call today. 1-800-635-8708.

"HI-MOISTURE SHELLED CORN"

You know the advantages of hi-moisture shelled corn versus dry corn for animal feeding. So now consider the MANY ADVANTAGES of POURED CONCRETE to store and protect your valuable grain.

Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel."

"Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to pre-lab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement."

"PROTECT YOUR CORN FROM THE HEAT."

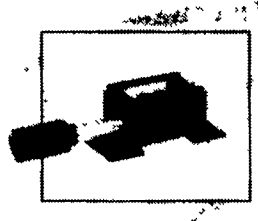
Bringing Efficiency Up By Bottoming Out

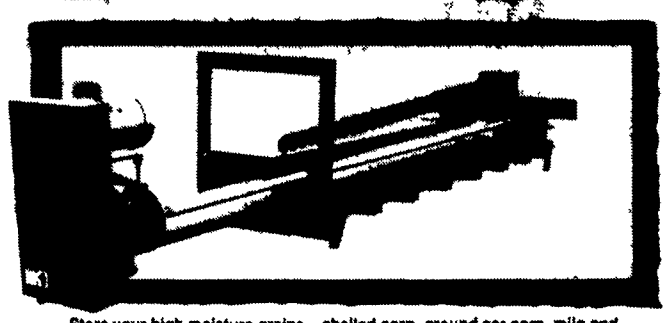
The harvesting of high moisture grains has brought increased efficiency to the farm field and harvesting losses are reduced, earlier harvesting can mean fewer weather problems and high moisture storage eliminates those costly drying methods. And the Series 8200H has brought increased efficiency to bottom unloading, tougher construction for [illegible] lower maintenance, superior engineering for increased operating efficiency and dependability and crop flexibility for increased usefulness and versatility.

FEATURES



Extra heavy duty double gear box for years of trouble-free operation.

Improved worm gear assembly with stainless steel shaft for greater corrosion resistance.



Store your high moisture grains – shelled corn, ground ear corn, milo and barley – with confidence.

Metal Roofs aren't Created Equal
Everlast II is better:
- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nails/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

Everlast II
is excellent for houses and barns.
Double dipped galvanized is proven best for animals.
Standing seam is ideal for houses.

FOUR SIMPLE STEPS TO SUCCESS

Farm For Profit Step 1
SOIL MANAGEMENT
ACHIEVE
- Contains nutrients and feeders which aid in sustaining microorganisms in the soil

REMEDY
- Contains nutrients and micronutrients which aid in sustaining microorganisms in the soil

TANK MIXING
STEP 2 PLANT NUTRITION
& STEP 1
We have found be adding 12 8 oz of Remedy and a small amount of Achieve per acre to the recommended amount of Farm For Profit Step 2 True Solution Starter Fertilizer and applying directly on the seed or in the seed cradle we got outstanding results

Farm For Profit Step 2
PLANT NUTRITION
FARM FOR PROFIT TRUE SOLUTION STARTER FERTILIZER
- Near neutral pH
- 100% available
- Root zone placement
- Low salt index
- Foliar Feeding

Farm For Profit has established their own standard for quality Unlike many liquid fertilizers Farm For Profit True Solution Starter Fertilizer is a solution It is not just particles suspended in liquid Each drop contains the exact N-P-K ratio of the standard formulation Farm For Profit liquid fertilizer is consistent and stable and won't settle out It handles easily It can be stored indefinitely When it is applied, it flows evenly and cleanly Farm For Profit True Solution Starter Fertilizer meets our standard for quality

Farm For Profit Step 3
VEGETABLE OIL
1 Encapsulates the chemical
2 Helps generate uniform droplet size
3 Greatly reduces chemical evaporation
4 Reduces chemical drift
5 Increases the coverage because of its spreading and sticking ability
6 Reduces chemical wash off
7 Gives you better control of the chemicals

One of Farm For Profit's main concerns is the level of soil and water pollution found today Our goal is to remove as much petroleum base material and farm chemical from the soil as possible Farm For Profit Step 3 Vegetable Oil gives us a means to reduce the level of both petroleum base materials and farm chemicals

Farm For Profit Step 4
TRAINED FIELD PERSONNEL
The Farm For Profit Authorized Distributor or Dealer in Your Area Will
- Explain the total Farm For Profit program to you
- Explain the best fertilizer program for your operation
- Suggest ways to improve the efficiency of your chemical program
- Explain to you what other farmers have been doing to cut their operating expenses while maintaining or increasing their production output

Farmers Helping Farmers
That's what Farm For Profit is all about!
